

Inspiring efforts to save energy

National Geographic Society Headquarters, Washington D.C

The headquarters of the National Geographic Society has saved an estimated 8-11% on energy costs. This amounts to about $300,000 a year, thanks to retrofits and upgrades. It was no surprise that the structure became the first facility in the nation to achieve (LEED-EB) certification.

One minister, 20 WC tickets

PM smiles as colleagues press with demand; fans suffer in queue on second day of sale

HASAN JAHID TUSHER and RIZANUZZAMAN LASKAR

While tens of thousands of people have been struggling to get the World Cup cricket tickets, ministers, state ministers, and secretaries to the ministries yesterday demanded that Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina arrange 20 tickets for each of them.

"We all have demanded 20 tickets for each. We have our close workers who will demand tickets from us. I see nothing wrong in it," one of the state ministers told 'The Daily Star'.

While chairing a weekly cabinet meeting, where the demand was raised, the premier responded only with a smile, one of the ministers said after the meeting.

Gilani moves to save coalition after ally departs

REUTERS, Islamabad

Pakistani Prime Minister Yusuf Raza Gilani held talks with opposition leaders yesterday in a bid to head off a possible vote of no confidence after a key partner quit the governing coalition.

Gilani's government lost its parliamentary majority on Sunday after the Muttahida Qaumi Movement (MQM) announced it would go into opposition over government fuel price policies that it said were "unbearable" for Pakistanis.

Gilani met the president of the biggest opposition party in the National Assembly, the Pakistan Muslim League (PML-N) yesterday. They were expected to
