FBCCI taps Rajapaksa for economic deal

STAR BUSINESS REPORT

The country's apex trade body yesterday requested the visiting Sri Lankan President, Mahinda Rajapaksa, to help establish a joint economic council on trade and investment to formulate a comprehensive economic agreement between Bangladesh and Sri Lanka.

The proposal came at a luncheon meeting hosted by the trade body, the Federation of Bangladesh Chambers of Commerce and Industry (FBCCI), in honour of Rajapaksa at the city's Sonargaon Hotel, where and both the chambers have ministers, government highups, businessmen and diplomats of both the countries were present.

FBCCI President AK Azad said the joint council may also take bilateral trade facilitation programmes and implement those for mutual interests with periodic reviews of progress. In the gathering, Rajapaksa did not give any speech.

Azad said a joint cooperation agreement was signed in 1985 between the FBCCI and the Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry of Sri Lanka already exchanged a few delegations within the purview of the cooperation agreement.

He made pleas to the Sri Lankan businessmen to invest in infrastructure, agro-based industries and power and energy sectors of Bangladesh.

"We can also explore feasibility of having joint ventures particularly in setting up coconut oil mills, textile, leather and footwear, pisciculture, engineering and food processing industries," Azad said.

According to FBCCI data, Bangladesh exported goods worth $13.82 million to Sri Lanka during the first six months (July-December) of the current fiscal year and imported goods worth $12.87 million.

In fiscal 2009-10, the exports were worth $23.74 million against the total imports of $22.60 million.

From 1971 to 2010, a total of 31 Sri Lankan companies were registered with Bangladesh's Board of Investment and the total investment was recorded at $75 million under joint venture and full foreign ownership.

At the meeting, Lankan Foreign Minister Professor GL Peiris said terrorism and violence were the common problems of both Bangladesh and Sri Lanka previously, but now those are not prevailing.

"Now, both the countries are rediscovering their own identities," Peiris said. He said both the countries need to enhance people-to-people contacts for accelerating the socio-economic development.

Finance Minister AMA Muhith said terrorism is a national enemy. "We should work together to fight terrorism," he said. Trade between the countries is balanced and growing, the minister added.

GP amends books to issue bonds

STAR BUSINESS REPORT

Grameenphone shareholders yesterday approved an amendment to the company's articles of association, allowing it to issue bonds or take bank loans of up to Tk 1,100 crore. The amendment is subject to approval from the regulator.

The approval to the amendment came at the 14th annual general meeting of the mobile operator at Bangabandhu International Conference Centre in Dhaka.

Sigve Brekke, chairman of Grameenphone, and Tore Johnsen, chief executive officer, were present with other board members, senior officials and shareholders of the company. Hossain Sadat, company secretary, conducted the meeting with a question-answer session.

The shareholders approved final cash dividends at 85 percent of paid-up capital for the year to December 31, 2010, as recommended by the

Some of the shareholders said the network system and internet services of GP are getting poor or bad, but they appreciated the company's corporate social responsibility interventions.

Johnsen said the manage- system. But the service quality, ment team of the company always tries to perform better. "This is the biggest company in the country. The network problems are occurring for the swapping or upgrading of the both voice and data, will be better than what it had been in the past."

While replying to the shareholders' queries, Brekke said: "GP's revenue will increase in the following days. The company has seen a gradual increase in revenue but due to higher subscriber acquisition cost, the EBITDA margin was lower compared to 2009, which was mainly driven by high SIM tax."

MI Cement rejoinder | Stocks plunge on big sell-offs

But actually we have raised Tk 334.80 crore. However, the fact is that we proposed to raise the fund not only for setting up the fourth unit of 3,000 MT/day capacity. We had clearly stipulated in our proposal in the prospectus (pages 111 and 112) that the company will diversify the investment in backward-linkage projects and improve the cement plant by adding more establishments and equipment for its smooth operation and helping reduce the production costs, which are Tk 218.61 crore.

2. As for the question over other operating income we explain that it came mainly from transport vehicles. These vehicles could not be used extensively as they got old. Moreover, there was traffic limitation to ply these vehicles in Dhaka city. Hence, while previously each vehicle could make two trips in Dhaka city a day, it was reduced to one trip due to the imposition of a traffic embargo: no access to the city before 9pm. That's why the income under this head declined.

3. Regarding the non-operational income, it came mainly from sales of scrap. As these items were less in July-Dec of 2009, so the income got decreased from Tk 18.13 lakh to Tk 8.61 lakh (the reported figure is not correct). It is to note that in 2008 huge scrap emanated from the fabrication of nonstandard parts of the third unit during installation, which was not the case in the following period.

4. An increase in extra benefit and expenses for employees is a normal phenomenon, which has been properly disclosed, in the financial statement (see page 73 of the prospectus).

5. Sales for the period of July-Dec 2009 increased by 33.42 percent, compared to the previous corresponding period. It was due to utilisation of spare capacity, which was disclosed on page 75 of the prospectus. So denying of the spare capacity stated to be associated in the probe committee report is incorrect and misleading.

6. An earnings per share (EPS) has been stated to be Tk 1.27 as of 2009. It is a misleading and incorrect figure. Actually, the income period shown in the prospectus July-Dec 2009 was for six months and EPS was Tk 1.60, which, if annualised, comes to Tk 3.20.

Stocks suffered a dramatic decline yesteraccused in the stockmarket probe report deliberately went for sell-offs to push down the market and create pressure on the government not to take action against them.

The benchmark general index of Dhaka Stock Exchange slumped 68.23 points, or 1.07 percent, to 6,249 points. The DSE lost 175 points in the last four days of trading.

Earlier, the stockmarket probe committee had named several people who are liable for the stockmarket debacle. "It is an unusual behaviour of the stock-market," said Salahuddin Ahmed Khan, a teacher of finance at Dhaka University. Khan, also a former chief executive officer of DSE, said the "crash suspects" wanted the market to fall as the High Court asked the government to make the report public within a reasonable time.

The surveillance department of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) should investigate to find out who went for the massive sell-offs, he added.

Most investors anticipated that the market will gain but the selling pressure pushed down the stocks, insiders said.

"Suspected peoples went for sell-offs to create pressure on the government for not taking action against them," said Akter H Sannamat, a market anaday fuelling speculations that the people lyst. It is not a rational behaviour of the market, he added.

Initially, the carrier will operate a two-way flight a week, on Wednesday, which will facilitate the local apparel exports mainly, hopes the regional representatives of the German-based carrier.

"We are going to launch the first ever direct cargo service to Europe from Bangladesh. We hope this helps the Bangladeshi exporters reach the European market within a night," said Matthias Brazel, general manager for Middle East, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka of Lufthansa Cargo. "We have seen that export from Bangladesh is growing fast after China and India, and the market is growing further. So we thought, if we can launch the cargo service from Dhaka, it will be a win-win situation for local exporters and for us as well."

He was speaking at a press conference organised by the Lufthansa at the Best Western La Vinci in Dhaka yesterday. He said Lufthansa will come from Frankfurt via Mumbai to Dhaka and will depart directly from Dhaka to reach Frankfurt. Brazel, however, declined to disclose about the freight fare for per kilogramme of products. "It will depend on products, volumes and business type as well." So far, Bangladeshi entrepreneurs have been exporting products through Middle Eastern carriers that take three to four days, which is a major drawback for the exporters, said industry insiders. Bangladesh mainly exports 1.5 lakh tonnes of readymade garments, pharmaceutical, leather and agroitems to European and North American countries. Syed Sadaquat Hossain, country manager of Lufthansa in Bangladesh, urged the government to increase the cargo volumes and capacities. "The space and other technical facilities at the Shahjalal International Airport are inadequate to facilitate local exporters. Local exporters' capacity has increased manifold in the last decade," Hossain added. "Often the cargo village at the airport fails to shelter valuable export items, protecting them from heat and rain only. In addition, there is acute shortage of scanner machine as well," he said. Carsten Hernig, regional director of Lufthansa

CARE arranges workshop on inclusive business

STAR BUSINESS DESK

CARE Bangladesh hosted a two-day international workshop on "Leading Inclusive Growth-How to Create Win-Win Partnerships" in Dhaka yesterday.

Leading local and foreign private sector companies, non-governmental organisations and donor agencies that are operating in Bangladesh took part in the event at Spectra Convention Centre. Trainers from UK-based International Business Leaders' Forum (IBLF) and Business Innovation Facility (BIF) conducted the workshop.

Nick Southern, country director of CARE Bangladesh, gave the opening remarks, CARE said in a statement yesterday.

The workshop is part of a project that CARE Bangladesh is implementing this year, named "Responsible Business Promotion in Bangladesh (RBPB)". UK's state lending arm Department for International Development and CARE International UK are funding the project.

The goal of the project is to research and address the precise needs of national industry and civil society in understanding and implementing responsible business models in Bangladesh and provide training to stakeholders on these areas.

As per the statement, the project will result in the establishment of partnerships between industry and civil society that benefit the poor as producers, consumers or workers.

The RBPB project is the result of consultation, exchange and learning that has taken place during CARE Bangladesh's pro-poor private sector engagement programme.

The programme was the continuation of the workshops that took place last week with the private sector and the NGOs separately. Some of the objectives of those workshops include sharing the idea of inclusive business, NGO-corporate partnership and understanding the expectations from each other.

Participants of the workshops shared their experience, worked on conflict resolution, new business models in groups.

CARE's efforts have now strategically expanded to cover a wide range of sustainable programmes across the country, focusing inclusive supply chains and markets, pro-poor business models, development research, and workforce empowerment, the statement added.
