WAR CRIMES TRIAL

Govt praised by Int'l rights body HRW

UNB, Dhaka

Human Rights Watch (HRW) has lauded the government's efforts in bringing those responsible for the 1971 atrocities under trial.

It is an "important and long overdue step" to achieving justice for the victims, the New York-based rights group said in a letter to Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina yesterday.

The HRW also put forward a set of seven suggestions regarding the trial under International Crimes (Tribunals) Act 1973.

"The Bangladesh government has an unprecedented opportunity to hold those responsible for the 1971 atrocities to account in credible trials and, in doing so, to show it is firmly committed to the rule of law," said Brad Adams, Asia Director of HRW, in the letter.
