BRITISH COUNCIL
ACTIVE CITIZENS
Call for Partners
Are you involved in training young people? Are you running a youth group or a community organisation that encourages young people to play an active role in their communities? Are you interested in further developing your training skills and resources?
The British Council is offering a 5-day residential workshop on Facilitation Skills in mid July 2011. The workshop will be delivered by international trainers who will share new training techniques as well as cutting edge leadership training materials from the UK. The course will also present an opportunity to learn more about the work that British Council is delivering through its Active Citizens project.
Following the workshop, all trained facilitators will be invited to partner with the British Council in their youth leadership training, to benefit from British Council's global resources and join a growing network of organisations that are helping young people in Bangladesh to become Active Citizens.
We are now inviting applications from interested organisations. To find out more about the Active Citizens Project, the workshop and how to apply for a place, please visit www.britishcouncil.org/bangladesh or email Nazmul.Haque@britishcouncil.org.
The deadline for applications is 23 June 2011.
