

Jordan king's motorcade 'attacked' in southern city

King Abdullah II
AFP, Amman

Jordanian youths yesterday attacked King Abdullah II's motorcade with stones as he visited the southern city of Tafileh, a security official said, but the government immediately denied the incident.

"Part of the king's motorcade was attacked with stones and empty bottles by a group of men in their 20s and 30s after the king's car entered Tafileh," the official said.

"Nobody was hurt and the motorcade changed its route."

He added, without elaborating, that police "tackled the infiltrators and made arrests."

A palace source confirmed that members of the Royal Guard who accompanied the king were not hurt.

But government spokesman Taher Adwan denied the incident had taken place, telling AFP that "the motorcade of his majesty the king was not attacked."

The state-run Petra news agency quoted Adwan as saying that the "visit to Tafileh was successful."

"All that happened was a quarrel between police and people who wanted to greet the king," who ordered several multi-million-dollar development projects in the city, Adwan said.

People in Tafileh, 179 kilometres (111 miles) south of Amman, have been protesting for several weeks to demand reforms and effective measures to fight corruption.

They intercepted the motorcade of Prime Minister Maaruf Bakhit in May and tried to prevent him from visiting the city.

In his first televised address since pro-reform protests started in January in Jordan, the king on Sunday vowed to enhance political and socio-economic reform and promised a new electoral law that would lead to parliamentary government.

Suicide attack hits Pakistani capital

One killed, 4 injured

A bomber blew himself up in an Islamabad bank yesterday, killing a security guard in the first suicide attack in the Pakistani capital for nearly two years.

The attack comes with Pakistan on edge weeks after US Navy SEALs found and killed Osama bin Laden in the garrison city of Abbottabad, two hours' drive from Islamabad, in a case that humiliated the seemingly all-powerful military.

Police said the bomber tried to enter a branch of the Silk Bank in the capital's I-8 sector, but detonated his explosives when the guard put up resistance.

"It seems to be a suicide attack, we have found the head and the body parts of the bomber," city police chief Wajid Durrani told reporters on the spot.

"One security guard is confirmed dead while two others are injured," he told AFP, estimating that the bomber was aged 24 to 25 years old.

Hospital officials put the number of injured at four.

"We have received one dead in addition to some body parts of the bomber," doctor Farrukh Kamal at the city's main hospital told AFP.

"There are four wounded but they are out of danger," he added.

The front of the bank was badly damaged and hoardings smashed. Pieces of human flesh were scattered on the floor and several cars parked outside were also damaged, said an AFP reporter.

Bomb destroys 7 Nato tanks in Pakistan

AFP, Peshawar

At least seven tankers carrying fuel for Nato troops in Afghanistan were gutted yesterday when a bomb planted in one of the vehicles exploded at a terminal in Pakistan, officials said.

"A bomb fitted with a timer blew up an oil tanker. It triggered fire that engulfed six more tankers," local administration official Shahar Yar Khan told AFP.

There were no reports of any casualties, he added.

Another official in the area said more than 30 fuel tankers were parked at a terminal in the Torkham border area of the troubled Khyber tribal region.

Britain, Bill Gates boost child vaccine funding

AFP, London

Britain and Bill Gates joined forces yesterday to pledge more than half of the $3.7 billion sought to vaccinate nearly 250 million children against preventable diseases.

Prime Minister David Cameron told a donors' conference in London that Britain would contribute a further £814 million ($1.3 billion, 920 million euros) to GAVI (Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunisation), an aid group backed by the Microsoft tycoon.

Cameron said the extra funds would help treat 80 million children against pneumonia and diarrhoea, and save 1.4 million lives.

Gates followed Cameron's pledge by saying his charitable foundation would commit an additional one billion dollars over five years.

It is expected that by the end of the one-day summit donations should exceed the $3.7 billion target.

Cameron said: "Today we come together because we have the chance to save another four million lives in four years."

"Frankly, the idea of children dying from pneumonia and diarrhoea should be absolutely unthinkable in 2011."

"But for many parents in the developing world it is a devastating reality."

The pledges have gone a long way towards making up the $3.7-billion funding shortfall as GAVI aims to immunise 243 million more children and avert four million deaths by 2015.

Strong 6.2-quake rattles Indonesia

AFP, Jakarta

A strong 6.2-magnitude earthquake struck off Indonesia's Sulawesi island yesterday, geologists said, but there were no immediate reports of damage or tsunami warnings issued.

The undersea quake struck at a relatively shallow depth of 13 kilometres (eight miles) around 211 kms east of Manado on Sulawesi at 10:31 pm (1431 GMT), the US Geological Survey said.

There was no warning or advisory posted on the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center website.

Indonesia's Meteorological Service measured the quake at 6.9-magnitude but said it was unlikely to cause a tsunami.

Shortcomings, weaknesses led to poll debacle

Says India's CPI(M) General Secy

OUR CORRESPONDENT, New Delhi

The Communist Party of India (Marxist), has wrapped up its introspection over its fall from power in West Bengal and Kerala states acknowledging "shortcomings and mistakes" but ruling out change of leadership.

The CPI(M)'s stock-taking exercise at the meeting of its Politbureau and central committee ended on Sunday analysing the results of the April-May Assembly elections across five States and much of the time was devoted to ascertaining why the people of West Bengal heeded to Trinamool Congress chief Mamata Banerjee's call for "poribartan" and ignore former chief minister Buddhadeb Bhattacharjee's appeal for "prottabartan".

Addressing the media after the meetings, CPI(M) General Secretary Prakash Karat made it clear that the Left's ouster from power in West Bengal was the culmination of "accumulation of negative factors" over 34 years of its uninterrupted rule in the state.

"Notwithstanding the achievements of the successive Left Front governments since 1977, the prolonged rule for 34 years led to accumulation of negative factors and people voted for a change," Karat said.

Interestingly, senior leaders of CPI(M)'s ally Revolutionary Socialist Party said reports from district-level rank and file showed that the Left Front's base in rural areas had eroded considerably due to the perception of CPI(M) as a party "far removed

The CPI(M) central committee also admitted "mistakes with regard to (farmland acquisition) in Singur and Nandigram proved costly for the party in West Bengal." Bhattacharjee too had during election campaign conceded having made administrative and political mistakes in the process.

Karat said the need of the hour was not change of leadership but "course correction" but did not specify what the correction CPI(M) plans to undertake. Whether it means ideological course correction or something else is likely to be finalized at its Congress to be held next April.

Clearly, CPI(M) has to resolve all debates within the party if it hopes to stage a comeback not only in West Bengal and Kerala but also reclaim its earlier status as an influential political force at the national level.

It's all because of scholarship

Meanwhile, doctors have confirmed that Rumana's left eye has been completely damaged.

"Doctors are now trying to save the other eye," said Manjur, a retired army officer.

Rumana, teacher of international relations department, was doing Master of Science (MS) in Colombia University, Canada, on Fulbright Scholarship, her fathers said.

Rumana claimed her husband Syeed Hasan Sumon frequently assaulted her during their 10-year conjugal life. He beat her up several times on her return from Canada on May 12.

The man was furious when she decided to continue her study in Canada. "But I tolerated all sorts of torture considering the future of my only daughter," she said.

Before fleeing, Sumon had threatened Rumana with throwing acid or shooting her if she takes legal action, she said.

Sumon, a graduate from Bangladesh University of Engineering and Technology (Buet), has been living at his father-in-law's house since Rumana got pregnant, said Zobaidda Nasreen, a teacher of DU anthropology department and a friend of Rumana.

Sumon used to quarrel with his wife over trifles and at times beat her up, said another DU teacher preferring anonymity. But Rumana did not tell her parents about her torment as she married him without their consent.

Sumon, former student of Faujdardhat Cadet College, has never engaged himself in any kind of job or business, the teacher added.

However, Rumana's family members have demanded quick arrest and exemplary punishment of Sumon who went into hiding after a case was filed against him with Dhanmondi Police Station on June 6.

They alleged Sumon's cousin Kamal Uddin, a public prosecutor of Chittagong, is lobbying to protect the accused.

Contacted over the phone, Kamal told The Daily Star he is not in good terms with Sumon although they are relatives.

Sub-Inspector Mokbul Hossain, investigation officer of the case, said police have raided the accused's Paribagh residence in the city and would continue the hunt.

Also yesterday, Dhaka University Teachers' Association condemned the brutal attack on Rumana.

In a press release, the association leaders expressed grave concern as the accused has not been arrested even in a week of the incident.

They urged the university administration as well as the government to take steps ensuring the victim gets proper treatment.

More talks ahead

trade deficit and enhanced security cooperation will be among issues that are to come up in Krishna's deliberations with Bangladeshi top leaders.

Diplomatic sources said Krishna's visit is likely to be followed by those of Indian Water Resources Minister Salman Khursheed and Home Minister Palaniappan Chidambaram in the next two months.

Indian Foreign Secretary Nirupama Rao, who visited Dhaka on June 6-7 to attend a Foreign Secretary-level consultation, announced that Manmohan Singh's trip to Bangladesh will take place well before the end of the year.

While other diplomatic sources said Singh will most probably visit Bangladesh in September, after the monsoon session of Indian Parliament.

Dhaka and Delhi will witness a flurry of diplomatic movements to prepare the groundwork for Singh's visit. There will also be counter visits from Bangladesh side, said foreign ministry officials.

Manmohan Singh last visited Dhaka to participate in the SAARC summit in 2005 and is yet to reciprocate a bilateral visit with Prime Minister Hasina's trip to Delhi in January, 2010.

Singh's upcoming visit would be his maiden visit to Bangladesh since the Awami League government assumed office.

Earlier on June 7, during the foreign office-level consultation in Dhaka, foreign secretaries of the two countries expressed firm optimism about signing of agreements on sharing Teesta river water and boundary demarcation during Manmohan Singh's visit.

During Hasina's visit to India a year and a half ago, she talked with Singh on issues including Teesta water-sharing, border haats, cooperation in power sector, connectivity and trade.

The visit had also seen India announcing a $1 billion line of credit for a slew of development projects, mostly related to rail and infrastructure sectors in Bangladesh, and signing of three crucial bilateral agreements on enhanced security cooperation.

However, there is a sense of disquiet in Dhaka about the slowdown in the tempo of Indo-Bangladesh relations created by Hasina's visit and Bangladesh expects India to reciprocate adequately with the cooperation of Hasina's government in handing the top Ulfa leadership over to New Delhi.

Diplomatic sources said there is a feeling in Dhaka and New Delhi that not much substantive has been done to sustain the momentum in relations generated by that visit of Hasina and that the countries must move faster.
