JS body finds prices stable

After last week's market visit, it comes up with lone advice -- hanging price lists to check hike

RASHIDUL HASAN

A parliamentary body yesterday recommended hanging price lists at all kitchen markets in the capital in a bid to control prices of essentials during Ramadan.

The House committee on commerce ministry gave the only advice to the ministry based on its "experience" of visiting three kitchen markets in the city on June 15.

It also prepared a report that said it is satisfied that prices of all essential commodities are steady. The committee "did not increase" after the budget proposal on June 9.

"After verifying the prices of essentials in three kitchen markets, the committee is expressing satisfaction that prices of all essential commodities are steady. The committee hopes it will remain stable during the month of Ramadan [in August]," the report said.

In a stark contrast, however, a number of the ruling alliance lawmakers including Jatiya Samajtantrik Dal MP Hasanul Haq Inu and Jatiya Party MP Fazle Rabbi Chowdhury expressed concern over the price hike of essentials in parliament yesterday.

Focus on energy sector

REJAUL KARIM BYRON

As much as 17.3 percent of the total public investment in the sixth five-year plan will go to the energy sector, the second highest allocation by which a mega plan for power, gas, and coal sectors has been drawn to achieve a high economic growth.

The mega plan targets 15,357 megawatt power generation during the 2011-15 fiscal years. As many as 89 power plants -- 32 in public sector and 57 in private sector -- will be set up to achieve that goal.

The current power generation stands at around 5,000 MW in the 2010-11 FY.

There is another plan to import 1,000 MW power from India, Nepal and Bhutan. Besides, through nuclear power plant 2,000 MW power will be generated and construction of a nuclear reactor will start next year.

According to the plan, the government has fixed a target of reaching power to 65 percent households by 2015. At present, 45 percent households get power supply.

As per the plan, the urban sector would get the highest allocation of 19 percent, while the third highest 15.8 percent goes to the transport sector.

A detailed timeline has also been set for the power sector that says which of the 89 upcoming power plants would go online on which date.

Under the yearly power generation plan, the government has taken initiatives to produce 2,166 MW power from 25 plants by 2010-11 FY,
