Women's greater role to help tackle challenges

South Asian women leaders tell regional conference

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Ensuring greater role of women in development policy-making and equal access to resources can help address the challenges of poverty, ecology and extremism, observed South Asian experts yesterday.

As South Asians, women must forge cooperation and learn from each other's best practices to uphold their rights and create opportunities to use their potential the best way, they said.

The observations came at the third conference of South Asian Women's Network (SWAN) styled "Women of South Asia and the Green Economy". South Asia Foundation, Manusher Jonno Foundation and Jamia Millia Islamia University, New Delhi organised the two-day conference that began yesterday at BIAM auditorium in the capital. Around 70 participants from South Asian countries are attending the programme.

"In South Asia, inequality is holding us back. Without women having equal resources, poverty cannot be alleviated," said Prof Veena Sikri, convener of SWAN, in her inauguration speech.

There are many good practices and women are capable of doing amazing things in solving social and

Tannery relocation faces further delay

Govt seeks 2 yrs more to set up central ETP

ASHUTOSH SARKAR

The government has sought two more years from the High Court to set up a central Effluent Treatment Plant (ETP) in Savar and move the tanneries there from the capital.

The deadline to set up the central ETP and shift the environmentally hazardous tanneries from city's Hazaribagh ended on April 30 this year.

Before the deadline expired, the industries ministry filed a petition asking for two years' time to complete the job. The court is yet to fix any date for hearing of the petition.

Earlier, the government twice sought two years from the court for the relocation, but the court granted six months.

Rais Uddin Ahmed, counsel for the ministry, told The Daily Star that the government is sincere about setting up ETP and move the tanneries from Hazaribagh but so far it could not do this for lack of expertise.

There is no shortage of fund for the task, he said.

The HC in June 2009 asked the
