Caab eyes more staff

New organogram drafted to create 10,000 posts

SHARIFUL ISLAM

The Civil Aviation Authority of Bangladesh is going to restructure itself by creating 10,000 new jobs.

The new organogram is being prepared keeping the demand for the next 20 years in mind.

Caab officials said several sections are suffering from manpower shortage due to which they struggle to carry out regular necessary safety and air worthiness inspections. Control towers, the area control centre and radars are so under-staffed that just one person carries out duties in those places.

The existing organogram was originally prepared in 1977 but it was implemented in 1986-87 following government approval, said top Caab officials involved in drafting of the organogram. Caab now has 3,760 employees.

Wishing anonymity an official involved in the preparation of the draft organogram said the shortage of manpower in fire control section in Chittagong and Sylhet airports is so acute that they often have to send people from Dhaka to carry out their day-to-day work.

Asked whether shortage of manpower is causing any financial loss to the civil aviation watchdog, the official said, "Definitely it is causing financial loss."

The official, however, could not give any figure.

Muggers on bikes worry city cops

KAILASH SARKAR

Bike-riding muggers have become a menace in the capital, which concerns law enforcers as they are yet to find a proper way to stop these criminals.

In broad daylight, the gangs snatch money from citizens going to or coming out of banks injuring the victims sometimes fatally.

The issue was in focus at a monthly conference held at Rajarbagh Police Lines on January 23 where key personnel of Dhaka Metropolitan Police discussed what steps should be taken to prevent such crimes.

Meeting sources said the city's police stations recorded 35 incidents in which people had been shot and wounded during such muggings last month alone.

Law enforcers could neither recover the money taken away nor arrest anyone significant.

Several DMP officials told The Daily Star that the actual number of such muggings was much higher as many incidents are not reported.

On December 11, biker gangs shot two people in Chankharpul in the capital to get away snatching over Tk 12 lakh in broad daylight. One of the victims later died.

On Saturday last at Shanti Nagar in Dhaka, a gang shot a father and his son to

Islam no threat to democracy

Arab Spring leaders insist at Davos summit

AFP, Davos, Switzerland

New leaders from the countries of the Arab Spring sought to reassure their Western counterparts at the Davos forum that the rise of Islamist parties poses no threat to democracy.

Last year, when a wave of popular revolt swept the Middle East and North Africa, many in the West hoped it might herald a victory for liberalism.

Instead, wherever free elections have been held, well-organised Islamist parties have been the big winners, leading some to fear that the tyranny of secular autocrats might be replaced by repressive theocracy.

Blast outside Baghdad hospital kills 31

AFP, Baghdad

A suicide bomber set off an explosives-packed car outside a Baghdad hospital yesterday, killing 31 people in the capital's deadliest day in a month, amid a political crisis that has stoked tensions.

The attack in a predominantly Shia neighbourhood, which also left 60 people wounded, came days after al-Qaeda warned it would continue targeting Shia Muslims and barely a month after US troops completed their withdrawal, raising fresh concerns about the capabilities of domestic security forces.
