He said this when he called on Foreign Minister Dipu Moni at her office yesterday.

economy thanks to the physical connectivity and improved relations of Bangladesh with its neighbours.

Blake also lauded the passage of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act 2011 in Bangladesh which he hoped would contribute to addressing the menace of trafficking in persons.

A host of issues of mutual interest between the US and Bangladesh were discussed during the meeting, said a foreign ministry press release.

Dipu Moni said although the trade between the two countries reached close to $6 billion, there remain tremendous opportunities for increased trade and particularly bigger investment in Bangladesh.

ACC boss urges youths to fight corruption

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The Anti-Corruption Commission (ACC) Chairman Golam Rahman yesterday called upon the young generation to lead the battle against corruption.

"It was youths who led all national movements of the country. Like that, young people will also have to take the lead in the movement for curbing corruption", he said.

The ACC chief made the call as he inaugurated the CD of the theme song of Satata Sangha at Queen's School and College in the city's Adabar.

Satata Sangha is an association formed by ACC's Corruption Resistance Committee at the educational institutions across the country to mobilise youths for character building and against corruption.

At the launching ceremony, the ACC boss distributed rulers inscribed with anti-corruption slogans among the students of the institution.

Corruption is the main obstacle to the country's economic development, employment, and poverty alleviation, so it has to be resisted, he said.

ACC Commissioner Mohammad Badiuzzaman and its Secretary Faizur Rahman Chowdhury also spoke.

Boi Mela: A time for children

TUHIN SHUBHRA ADHIKARY

Anyone taking a look into Amar Ekushey Boi Mela yesterday between 11:00am and 4:00pm might have mistaken it for a children's recreational centre.

They cannot be blamed. Only children and their guardians occupied the Bangla Academy premises.

The youngsters were scampering from one end to the other, shuffling through books and tugging and making faces at the guardians to buy something of their liking.

It was an exclusive four-hour period for children, termed Shishu Prohor (children's hour), announced by the academy authorities on Wednesday to encourage guardians into acquainting budding minds with books and the habit of reading.

Shishu Prohor will also be observed today and on February 23 and 24.

Though the number of child visitors did not meet the expectations of the organisers and book publishers, the fair was quite lively with their clamour.

One enthusiastic child bares all his fingers and thumbs at this correspondent. "I got 10 books," says the child, Sarmin Fatima Mahbub, who arrived with her two nursery-going friends and mother.

The friends, Ayeen Ali Khan and Ariyana Manjur Tonmona, not to be outdone, proudly display the books they are carrying under their little arms.

"We came here during Shishu Prohor as it would not be crowded and the kids would be able to have a good time while roaming around freely," said Sarmin's mother, Roksana Mahbub.

However, the books failed to attract Ayeen's mother, Sadia Afroz. "Children's books available here should be more attractive and suited to their age," she said.

An author of children's literature, Lutfar Rahman Riton, echoed Sadia. Despite the large number of arrivals, most children's books are below standard, he said.

Arman Bhuiya of Eti Prokashon said overall sales of children's books, especially one based on a cartoon character, Doraemon, is satisfactory.

Meanwhile, booksellers and publishers put the blame for yesterday's low turnouts on the lack of publicity.

The academy's Deputy Director Murshiduddin Anwar said at least 15 to 16 national dailies published the news on Shishu Prohor yesterday.

The authority itself gave the announcement twice. The publishers themselves should have spread the news, he said.

HC keeps 5 cops standing

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The High Court yesterday kept five officials of Dhaka Metropolitan Police standing before it for around four and half hours on charge of torturing Rakib Hossain, a grandson of the country's first premier Tajuddin Ahmed.

The police officials are Deputy Commissioner of Gulshan zone Chowdhury Lutful Kabir, Assistant Commissioner Ashrafur Azim Miah, Officer-in-Charge of Gulshan Police Station Shah Alam and sub-inspectors Soumen Barua and Mostafiz.

They appeared before the bench of Justice AHM Shamsuddin Choudhury Manik and Justice Jahangir Hossain Selim in the morning as per its earlier order.

The police officials will again have to appear before the same bench on Monday in this connection, Deputy Attorney General ABM Altaf Hossain told The Daily Star.

As the court was busy with other urgent issues, it could not hear the statements of the police officials yesterday, he said adding that the court will pass further order after hearing their explanations on that day.

The bench on February 12 summoned the five police officials to appear before it yesterday to explain their alleged involvement in the torture on Rakib Hossain.

It also issued a rule asking the government to explain why it should not be directed to take appropriate legal action against the police officials responsible for the torture.

The HC order came when Supreme Court lawyer SM Rezaul Karim brought to its attention press reports on the incident.

According to the reports, Soumen and Mostafiz tortured Rakib when he along with a friend, Himel, parked his car in front of a roadside restaurant on Gulshan Avenue around 6:00pm on February 10.

The two police personnel reached the spot and addressed them as "Tui". As Rakib strongly protested this, they beat him up severely.
