

US denies switching terms of Taliban talks

Karzai slams US after shooting suspect flown abroad

AFP, Washington

The White House on Thursday denied Taliban claims that it had changed the terms of an Afghan reconciliation dialogue, a move the militia said prompted it to walk out of talks.

"The terms have been as I've stated them on many occasions," said White House spokesman Jay Carney, citing a need for the Taliban to lay down its arms, renounce al-Qaeda and abide by the Afghan constitution.

The Taliban said it had suspended contacts with the United States in Qatar, just days after a shooting spree by a lone US soldier left 16 Afghans dead.

"It was due to their alternating and ever-changing position that the Islamic Emirate was compelled to suspend all dialogue with the Americans," a statement posted on the Taliban website said. Making no mention of Sunday's murders, the militia complained that a US representative presented a list of conditions at the last meeting "which were not only unacceptable but also in contradiction with the earlier agreed upon points."

The statement confirmed that Taliban representatives had held talks in Qatar with their US counterparts over a prisoner exchange as well as the opening of a liaison office in the Gulf state.

Meanwhile, President Hamid Karzai yesterday accused the United States of failing to cooperate over a massacre of 16 Afghans blamed on an American sergeant, raising public tensions between the two countries.

His comments underscored deep Afghan anger over the shootings, one day after he said international forces should leave villages, potentially jeopardising Nato operations two years before combat troops are due to leave Afghanistan.

Nato chopper crash kills 16 in Afghanistan

REUTERS, Kabul

A Nato helicopter crashed into a house on the outskirts of the Afghan capital, Kabul, on Friday, killing 12 Turkish soldiers on board and four Afghan civilians on the ground, Turkey's military and a senior Afghan police official said.

"Twelve of our military personnel on board the helicopter have been martyred," the Turkish general staff said in a statement in Ankara. A team had been sent to the scene to investigate, it said.

Two women and two children were among those killed when the helicopter crashed into the house.

The cause of the crash appeared to be a technical fault.

Zawahiri urges Pakistanis to revolt against govt

AFP, Dubai

Al-Qaeda chief Ayman al-Zawahiri has called on Pakistanis to revolt against their government and military in a video posted on the Internet yesterday, US monitors said.

In a 10-minute speech uploaded to jihadist forums, Zawahiri argued that the Pakistani authorities only represented US interests, according to a statement from SITE Intelligence Group.

Zawahiri, shown standing in front of a green curtain, urged Pakistanis to follow the example of the Arab Spring as the military could not be expected to turn against America despite a deadly US strike on Pakistani troops in November.

"O our brothers in Pakistan! O our people in Pakistan! This treacherous army and bribe-taking government have plundered your wealth," he said in the video.

"They have ruined your economy and destroyed your world as well as your hereafter. What then are you waiting for?"

"Take a lead from your brothers in Tunisia, Egypt, Libya, Yemen and Syria who are stand ing up against oppression and oppressors with their bare chests exposed and offering sacrifices so that victory may be ordained for them."

Zawahiri also said that unless its demands, including the release of slain al-Qaeda chief Laden's family, were met, al-Qaeda would not release an elderly American development expert who was captured in Pakistan last August.

Long al-Qaeda's number two, Zawahiri took over the helm of the group after Bin Laden was killed in May 2011 in a US special forces night raid deep in Pakistan.

India hikes defence budget MPs join hands in climate battle

Utility helicopters and other weapons and systems for the three defence services, are expected to be clinched this year.

Over Rs 79,500 crore would be spent on purchasing modern weapon systems and military hardware, said Mukherjee, adding that this allocation is based on the present needs and any further requirement for the security of the nation.

The country plans to spend over $ 100 million on defence acquisitions in the next five to 10 years.

The Indian finance minister also announced reduction in personal income tax across various slabs, a populist move that also takes into account the fact that inflation is still not at comfort levels.

The Rs 1.8 lakh threshold for zero tax has been raised to Rs 2 lakh while incomes up to Rs 5 lakh will now fall in the 10 percent tax bracket.

Mukherjee also raised the slab for 20 percent tax rate from up to Rs 8 lakh to up to Rs 10 lakh. Those who earn more than Rs 10 lakh a year will now be taxed at 30 percent, a change from the earlier slab of over Rs 8 lakh.

In his speech, Mukherjee also proposed slashing the government subsidy burden and called for expediting the pace of economic reforms. High oil prices have swelled India's subsidy burden to roughly 2.5 percent of the GDP. Mukherjee called for reducing that to less than 2 percent in the next fiscal year. "We have to accelerate the pace of reforms," he told parliament.

The minister set a target of selling Rs 300 billion ($ 5.96 billion) worth of stakes in state-owned companies for the next fiscal year, roughly in line with forecasts. India has raised just Rs 139 billion in the current fiscal year from stake sales, far below its budgetary target of Rs 400 billion.

Mukherjee said he expected the Indian economy to grow by 7.6 percent in the next fiscal year, up from an expected 6.9 percent in the current year but below the 8.4 percent growth of the previous fiscal year.

The Indian budget presented in Parliament today substantially increased financial assistance to Bangladesh and other neighbouring countries.

Aid allocation to Bangladesh has been pegged at Rs 30 crore for financial year 2012-13. It was Rs 8 crore last year.

The assistance for Bhutan has been raised to Rs 2,638 crore from that of last year's Rs 2,030 crore while for Nepal to Rs 270 crore from last year's Rs 150 crore.

Assistance to Latin American countries was also raised from last year's Rs 0.50 crore to Rs 15 crore for the coming financial year.

on people most vulnerable to climate change-- wherever in the world they may be," said Saber Hossain Chowdhury, MP, chairperson of All Party Parliamentary Group on Climate Change, reading out the declaration.

Bangladesh's Parliamentary Standing Committee on Environment and Forest organised the three-day event with support from UNDP.

Parliamentarians from Bangladesh, Canada, Costa Rica, Ethiopia, the East African Legislative Assembly, Indonesia, the Maldives, Mali, the Netherlands, Nepal, Pakistan, the Philippines, Samoa, Scotland, Senegal, Sri Lanka, South Africa, Tanzania and Uganda attended the meeting.

According to the "Dhaka Parliamentary Declaration" all MPs endorsing the declaration can join the network whose action plan and statement of principles would be elaborated by the steering committee by the end of April this year.

The network's immediate actions would include forming a steering committee to decide policy priorities and seek funding to organise gatherings and employ a small secretariat, Saber said.

The parliamentarians at the meeting committed to collaborate across party-political boundaries to work for the welfare of those most affected by climate change and establish parliamentary committees to monitor and oversee climate-related policies.

The members of the parliament would work to enhance their capacity, develop integrated local, national and regional frameworks for climate change adaptation, mitigation and disaster risk reduction, prioritise funding for energy efficiency projects and renewable energy, says the declaration.

They would foster dialogue with the civil society, constituents, NGOs, businesses and involve people in the policy-making process, Saber said.

The members also committed to abolish fossil fuel subsidies in a gradual manner that does not hurt the poorest and ensure availability of alternatives.

Besides, they would review government budgets, expenditures and legislation regarding climate change, monitor disbursement of international climate finance to ensure transparency.

Addressing as chief guest, Jatiya Sangsad's Speaker Abdul Hamid said, "We need to make sure that the poor and vulnerable in our countries, often removed from international negotiations, can trust us to represent them."

Stating that climate change causes poverty, affects human security and has a negative impact on global economy, he said, "We parliamentarians have an important role to play. We have to ensure that there is a policy shift. We have to rise to the challenge and act united."

UNDP Resident Representative Robert Juhkam called upon the MPs to rise above traditional politics.

"As you all acknowledge, it is a humanitarian issue and a development concern. I therefore call on all parliamentarians to seek out common interests, forge alliances that work across parties and use cross-party caucuses to educate and empower MPs to operate more effectively," he said.

Jatiya Sangsad Chief Whip Abdus Shahid and Abdul Momin Talukder, chief of the parliamentary standing committee on environment and forest ministry, also spoke.

White rice linked

Qi Sun of the Harvard School of Public Health told AFP.

"But at the same time people should pay close attention to the other things they eat."

"It's very important to address not just a single food but the whole pattern of consumption."

In the British Medical Journal (BMJ), Sun's team said the link emerged from an analysis of four previously published studies, carried out in China, Japan, Australia and the United States.

These studies followed 350,000 people over a timescale from four to 22 years. More than 13,000 people developed Type 2 diabetes.

In the studies carried out in China and Japan, those who ate most rice were 55 percent likelier to develop the disease than those who ate least. In the United States and Australia, where consumption of rice is far lower, the difference was 12 percent.

Participants in the two Asian countries ate three or four servings of rice a day on average, compared to just one or two servings a week in the Western countries.

White rice is the dominant form of rice eaten in the world. Machines produce its polished look by hulling and milling, leaving a grain that is predominantly starch.

Brown rice, by contrast, has more fibre, magnesium and vitamins, and a lower "glycaemic index," a measurement of sugar content, than white rice.

Sun said the study did have limitations.

"I don't think I can put forward a 100-percent confirmed case, given that this is a meta-analysis of four original studies," he said.

"But I see a consistency across these studies, and there is biological plausibility that supports the association between white rice consumption and diabetes."

Diabetes affects nearly 350 million adults worldwide, according to the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Diet is only one factor in Type 2 diabetes, a complex disease that involves high levels of blood sugar that cannot be processed by the hormone insulin. Obesity and lack of exercise are also cited as culprits.

Spelling Bee 2nd round

The contestants will face a written competition followed by an oral one. The top six spellers of the division will go to the third level of the contest-- the TV round.

To similarly pick six winners from each division, the Spelling Bee team will visit Chittagong, Rajshahi, Rangpur, Khulna, Barisal and return to Dhaka by March 27.

With a slogan "Goodbye spelling mistakes," the first-ever spelling contest in the country has drawn attention of thousands of students from all over the country.

Online education material provider champs21.com is organising the contest.

Around 122 schools from across the country, including 60 from Dhaka and 12

Cadet Colleges, were visited by the champs21 crew to pick the top spellers from each school.

This made for some compelling competition in the first round whose online game proved even more fascinating. For example, the one between Mehedi Hasan of Dhaka Residential Model College and Sunjack Jesun of St Joseph Higher Secondary School who scored 2,652 and 2,557 to become first and second in the online contest.

They also happen to be the top two scorers in the country and are unlikely to be faced with some tough challenges with the third highest scorer having 1,530 points.

"I was the top scorer when Mehedi (Hasan) came in but then he toppled me and we have been competing hard ever since. Still, I think I can get a higher score than his," says a determined Jesun.

He adds that the online game has not only helped expand his vocabulary but also his fluency in English greatly. Even though he has his usual pressure of academic and extra-curricular activities, he makes sure that he takes time for spelling practice.

"I read the Spellato and also play the online Spelling Bee game for at least three hours, three days a week, whenever I get time," he says.

Sunjack Jesun and Mehedi Hasan might have an intense rivalry but they also respect each other.

"I expect nothing but the best from him (Jesun)," says Mehedi.

Asked if he feels pressure for the next round, he said, "I try not to put pressure on myself but I'll definitely give it my best shot."

Mehedi became fourth in the competition's school round. He had little chance to make it through to the divisional round as only three top spellers were chosen for that round from each school save from Cadet Colleges.

But he put all that past him in the online game.

Israeli troops kill one on Egypt border

AFP, Jerusalem

Israeli troops on Thursday killed a man and wounded and arrested three others in an exchange of gunfire on the border with Egypt, the Israeli army said.

"Israeli soldiers on patrol along the Israeli-Egypt border spotted a group of men on Israeli territory and opened fire to stop them, after the usual warnings. There was also gunfire from the Egyptian side," a statement said.

"After giving chase, the army arrested three injured suspects and evacuated them by helicopter to an Israeli hospital."
