

Manmohan leads Sachin tribute

Cricket

India's prime minister Friday led the tributes to batting superstar Sachin Tendulkar who became the first player in cricketing history to score 100 international centuries.

"I join the nation in congratulating Sachin Tendulkar on his making history -- a hundred centuries. He has made India proud," Manmohan Singh said in a press release.

"Tendulkar's long career has been a triumph of class, character and courage. I wish him many more innings and feats to continue inspiring the youth," added the statement from the premier.

Tendulkar, who turns 39 next month, achieved the milestone with his 49th one-day century in an Asia Cup match against Bangladesh at the Sher-e-Bangla stadium in Dhaka. He has 51 Test hundreds.

Millions of fans in India and across the cricketing world had endured an anxious year-long wait for the great moment, with Tendulkar seeming permanently stuck on a tally of 99 centuries.

"Well played Sachin the little master...!!!" former England all-rounder Ian Botham posted on Twitter.

The micro-blogging site was flooded with congratulatory messages that poured in from fans and officials the world over immediately after the "Master Blaster" reached the 100-run mark.

Former England skipper Nasser Hussain, who was in New Delhi on Friday, told reporters that Tendulkar had secured his place at the top of the all-time list.

"Sir Donald Bradman was great but for me the greatest batsman to have ever played the game is Sachin Tendulkar," Hussain said.

Bollywood stars were also quick to add their tributes.

"India breathes normally ...!! Sachin completes an incredible feat !! A hundred 100's .. Never done before, perhaps never after," film legend Amitabh Bachchan posted on his Twitter feed.

"Finally he did it. Sachin creates history in world cricket! Congrats to Sachin Hundredkar. Respect," tweeted fellow actor Akshay Kumar.

International Cricket Council president Haroon Lorgat hailed Tendulkar as a true role model as he lauded his "magnificent" feat.

"He is a marvel to cricket lovers around the world and with an array of batting records, Sachin is a true role model who will undoubtedly hold a special place in cricket's history," Lorgat said in a statement.

Perhaps the best of tributes was from Rameez Raja, former Pakistan batsman who was commentating on the match. Rameez told reporters from outside the commentary box:

"Sport transcends boundaries. We [Pakistanis] can own Sachin as much as India owns India, and that is the beauty of the sport. Of course, Pakistanis also look up to him because he has been such a great ambassador for the sport. As I said, there are no boundaries, for instance, when you are listening to music or watching sport. You watch it for the fun of it; you watch it for what sportsmen are. They are the most neutral people in the world. And that's the great story about Sachin Tendulkar."

Anelka scores in debut

AFP, Beijing

French striker Nicolas Anelka scored in his highly-anticipated debut in the Chinese Super League Friday but was powerless to prevent new club Shanghai Shenhua losing 3-2 to fierce rivals Beijing Guoan.

The former Arsenal and Chelsea striker equalized for Shenhua to make it 2-2 with a simple tap midway through the second half after a defensive lapse from Beijing -- raising hopes of a victory in a match dubbed the "China Derby".

The capital side had gone two goals ahead thanks to efforts from Piao Cheng and Portuguese midfielder Manu.

Siddikur on 27th

Golf

SPORTS REPORTER

Siddikur Rahman stayed in the 27th position, along with six others, after the third round of the Handa Faldo Cambodian Classic yesterday. The 27-year old golfer played a two-under-par 70 in the third round at the sun-baked Angkor Golf Resort on Friday to take his tally to five-under-par 211 as Korea's Kim Hyung-sung took solo lead with 15-under-par 201.

The good thing about Siddikur's game in this event so far has been his consistency, which has been amiss from his play in the last couple of events. After a 70 in the first round, he settled for a 71 in the second and followed that up with a 70 in the third. However, the third round could have been much better had he not faltered in the front nine where he mixed up a birdie with a bogey and a double bogey to finish the front nine on 38. But the Brunei Open winner of 2010, came back strongly in the back nine where he carded four birdies on the trot to finish with 32 for a third round score of 70.

Abahani on top

SPORTS REPORTER

Abahani returned to the top of the Grameenphone Bangladesh Premier League table by defeating defending champions Sheikh Jamal Dhanomdi Club 2-1 at the Bangabandhu National Stadium yesterday. Nigerian forward Lucky Paul Ofofe gave Abahani an eighth minute lead while Ghanaian midfielder Awudu Ibrahim doubled the lead in the 66th minute before Atiqur Rahman Meshu reduced the margin with a neat header in the next minute.

The win took Abahani back to the top with 17 points from seven matches, two clear of Muktijoddha Sangsad while the defending champions struggle at seven points from same number of matches.

Lucky Paul gave Abahani an eighth minute lead when Lucky Paul followed up his thwarted attempt to find the back of the net. Piazzuzzaman, who was standing for regular keeper Aminul Haque, did his best to save the initial shot but could do nothing on the rebound.

Sheikh Jamal enjoyed more possession and won a few corners but could not turn them into a goal. And that proved crucial as Awudu Ibrahim doubled the Abahni lead in the 66th minute with a solo effort as he danced past the keeper to slot it home. Jamal reduced the margin a minute, courtesy of Meshu's header on an Akon cross, but in the end that proved too little.

MU got what they deserved

AFP, Bilbao

Manchester United left-back Patrice Evra said his side had got what they deserved after being eliminated from the Europa League by Athletic Bilbao on Thursday.

United needed to overturn a 3-2 deficit from the first leg, but they never looked like troubling Marcelo Bielsa's slick side and went out after a one-sided 2-1 loss at San Mames saw them beaten 5-3 on aggregate.

It was the latest setback in a string of European disappointments for United, who meekly exited the Champions League at the group phase after losing 2-1 at Swiss champions FC Basel in December.

"It has been a bad year in Europe for Manchester United. We have had a difficult season," said Evra, who captained United in Bilbao.

"We have been more focused in the league, I don't know why. You have to be honest and say we don't deserve to be in the Champions League or the Europa League this season."

Beaten 3-1 by Barcelona in last season's Champions League final, United now find themselves without a major final to look forward to for the first time since the 2001-02 season.

Their only hope of silverware rests with the defence of their Premier League title.

Sir Alex Ferguson's side currently lead nearest rivals Manchester City by a point, ahead of their trip to relegation-threatened Wolverhampton Wanderers on Sunday.

Barca face Milan test

AP, Nyon

Barcelona and Real Madrid were kept apart in the Champions League quarterfinals and semifinals draw Friday, though the defending champion must first beat AC Milan before the Spanish giants can hope to meet in a potentially stellar final.

Barcelona will travel for the first leg against seven-time winner Milan, in a quarterfinals clash that reunites the two European powers after they met in the group stage.

Madrid, the nine-time winner, got the most favourable draw--playing away first against the competition's surprise team APOEL of Cyprus.

Chelsea will play away to Benfica first in their quarterfinal. Marseille was drawn at home first against Bayern Munich, which hosts the final on May 19.

Quarterfinals first-leg matches are played on March 27-28, and return matches are on April 3-4.

In the subsequent semifinals draw, Marseille or Bayern will host APOEL or Madrid in the first leg.

Benfica or Chelsea will play at home first against Milan or Barcelona. Semifinals first legs are played on April 17-18 and return matches on April 24-25.

Barcelona had the best of Milan in the group stage, drawing 2-2 at home before winning 3-2 in a high-class encounter at San Siro.

"It is a psychological advantage," said Barcelona director Amador

Bernabeu, anticipating another meeting with Milan's former Barca forward Zlatan Ibrahimovic. "But to play Ibra is another thing. We respect him all the time."

Milan director Umberto Gandini said the Italians would have to overcome "the best club in the world."

"It's probably the most entertaining, the most attractive football clubs playing each other. But I know they are not happy about playing us," Gandini said.

Madrid arguably had most to be happy about--avoiding the drama of facing either Barcelona or a reunion for Real coach Jose Mourinho with his former team Chelsea.

"We are glad to avoid them, it's true, but it doesn't mean we are in the semifinals," Madrid director Emilio Butragueno said. "APOEL is the big surprise. They have all our respect."

APOEL, which started in the second qualifying round last July, is the first Cypriot team to advance so far in the world's most prestigious club competition.

"It's a dream, an experience for us," APOEL chairman Phivos Erotokritou said. "To have Real playing in Cyprus is going to be a feast for the people. We're happy that the first game is at home in Nicosia because you imagine if the first game was away with a result we couldn't bear."

Still, APOEL has shown resilience by progressing to the last-eight while scoring just seven goals in its past eight games.

Abidal career in doubt

Football

AFP, madrid

The head of Spain's national organ transplant organisation on Friday suggested that French footballer Eric Abidal would have difficulty returning to the sport after a liver transplant.

The 32-year-old Barcelona defender is due to have a transplant in the coming weeks, his club said on Thursday, a year after he previously underwent surgery to remove a liver tumour.

Rafael Matesanz told the Marca newspaper, however, that he believed that it would be "very difficult" for him to play again.

"It's clear that everything will go well and that he could play sport at a high level but football is a contact sport and one of the things that you have to avoid after a transplant is trauma and blows in that area," he was quoted as saying.

Matesanz said Abidal was "a strong person, an elite sportsman and he will have a normal life. And it's clear that he will be able to play sport".

But he added: "He has to take a series of precautions for the rest of his life, including not getting hit in that area. He will have medical treatment for life and will have to have regular check-ups."

The internationally-renowned doctor added that rejection was not a problem in his opinion because of the player's level of fitness.

France national coach Laurent Blanc said he was more concerned about Abidal's health and the effect on his family than any discussion about when -- or if -- he would play again, including in the upcoming European championships.

"It's not the thing that's uppermost in my mind at the moment," he said.

"At times like these, there's not a great deal you can say. It's sad news for Eric... it goes beyond football," Blanc told the French Football Federation's web site.

On Thursday, Jean-Daniel Chiche, head of the medical foundation Life-Priority Fund where Abidal is an ambassador, insisted that the player was "ready to fight and would play again" after his operation.

After Abidal underwent surgery in March 2011, he had not been expected to return to the pitch until August. But he made a surprise return on May 3 in the final minutes of Barca's return 1-1 Champions League semifinal tie with Real Madrid.

The defender has been a regular this season for the Catalan side, starting in 20 first division matches. But he has not played since picking up a hip injury playing for France in their friendly win over Germany at the start of March.

Mancini targets EPL glory

AFP, Manchester

Roberto Mancini saw his expensive Manchester City side fail in Europe once more on Thursday, but still insisted they can still win their first ever Premier League title.

The Italian held himself responsible for the end of their European interest, as a 3-2 second leg victory led to defeat on away goals against Sporting Lisbon, a team currently fourth in the Portuguese league.

City, who trail leaders Manchester United by one point in the Premier League, saw their local rivals also go out of the Europa League just two hours before they did.

Now, both clubs have only the league title upon which they need concentrate.

"We were envious of United," joked Mancini. "They lost so we wanted to lose this game."
