Trade, defence cooperation top agenda

It will press for signing the much-talked-about Trade and Investment Cooperation Forum Agreement (Ticfa) and strategic partnership deals with Bangladesh.

Dhaka, however, wants to proceed with caution in respect of signing any deal with Washington, and it is not ready to ink any deal with Washington during Clinton's 24-hour visit.

Duty-free and quota-free access of Bangladeshi apparel to the US market and deportation of Lt Col AM Rashed Chowdhury, condemned killer in Bangabandhu murder case, will figure prominently in the talks between the two sides.

Washington may offer stronger cooperation and partnership in gas exploration, and in power and energy sectors.

As part of her threenation tour (Bangladesh, India and China), Clinton is expected to arrive in Dhaka at 4:00pm on May 5 and hold meetings with government ers and civil society representatives to discuss US-Bangladesh cooperation in political, economic and security matters.

programme schedule, on her arrival, she will first hold talks with her Bangladesh counterpart Dipu Moni at the foreign ministry. They will discuss political, security and economic cooperation between the two nations. The talks will be followed by a joint press conference.

Clinton will later call on Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina and discuss a wide range of bilateral issues. The foreign minister will host a dinner in honour of the US Secretary of State.

On May 6, she will hold a meeting with the Leader of the Opposition Khaleda Zia, Nobel Laureate Prof Muhammad Yunus and civil society representatives. She is expected to leave Dhaka for Kolkata at about 3:30pm.

They said the top US diplomat would discuss with Dipu Moni the issue of the death of Aminul Islam, a leader of Bangladesh Garment and Industrial Workers Federation, who was picked up and tortured to death allegedly by law enforcers.

International rights bodies strongly condemned the incident and demanded proper probe into his death.

Four US officials yesterday met high-ups at the foreign ministry and dishigh-ups, opposition lead- cussed issues relating to Clinton's upcoming visit.

Sources said Clinton's meeting with Khaleda will feature many issues including political repression and According to the draft harassment, disappearance of political leaders, violation of human rights, the caretaker government and the next general election.

> Diplomatic sources said her upcoming visit is very crucial and has a special significance in strengthening ties between the two nations.

They said the US that is still unhappy with Prof Yunus' removal from Grameen Bank wants partnership with Bangladesh as it has special strategic importance to the USA in the present global and regional circumstances.

Officials at the foreign and the commerce ministries said Dhaka is yet to decide on signing the Ticfa agreement. It is still scrutinising the deal to figure out its future implications.

The Ticfa promises to protect investments, remove obstacles in bilateral trade and create a forum for discussing issues relating to trade and investment.

Although both the sides reached an understanding over the key issues laid down in the trade deal, Dhaka is yet to complete formalities to ink the agreement. Similarly, no decision has been made about signing a "strategic partnership" or defence deal with between the USA and Washington at this moment. However, senior government officials said there wouldn't be any big problem in completing all procedures to sign an agreement if both the governments wish so. "In the past, we had completed procedures overnight. So, the possibility of signing agreements during Hillary Clinton's visit cannot be ruled out," said a government high-up.

Dhaka has proposed forming a joint commission to create a regular forum to discuss issues regarding security cooperation, said government officials. Diplomatic sources said Washington wants more engagement with Dhaka in the area of security cooperation. The US believes that Bangladesh's role is vital to maintaining security in the Bay of Bengal. Besides, it considers Bangladesh as an active partner in regional counterterrorism efforts, they said.

They said USA's desire to enhance military engagement with Bangladesh is evident in the recent visits by US high-ups, including Andrew J Shapiro, US assistant secretary of state of Political-Military Affairs, and the first-ever Bangladesh-US Dialogue on Security Issues held in Dhaka on April 19.

On April 24, Shapiro said at the Carnegie Endowment Roundtable in Washington, DC that defence ties Bangladesh are one of the setbacks in recent times, most robust in South Asia.

"Bangladesh is a key player in maintaining security in the Bay of Bengal. They are an active partner in regional counterterrorism efforts and we are working to enhance their ability to respond to natural disasters," he said.

"Our cooperation with Bangladesh is a prime example of how US security assistance can play a critically important role in our diplomatic engagement," Shapiro said at the roundtable.

Diplomatic sources said the USA wants a "strategic partnership" deal with Bangladesh to create a regular forum to discuss issues like counterterrorism, food security, climate change and energy. But it is yet to put forward a formal proposal for signing such an agreement, they said.

Foreign ministry officials said the commerce ministry had sent the Ticfa draft to the Prime Minister's Office for its opinion.

They said the ministry was of the opinion that the government should do an in-depth scrutiny of the Ticfa to know about its future implications and impacts.

"We [the foreign ministry) are not in favour of inking any deal hurriedly. But there are people in the government for signing agreements on trade and defence cooperation without delay to improve Bangladesh-US ties that suffered serious said a senior government official asking not to be named.

On December 1, last year, Dan Mozena, US ambassador in Dhaka, said at a press conference, "Washington wants to sign the trade agreement, which is moving forward, to create a forum for discussing full range of issues relating to trade and investment."

meeting of the Food Policy Monitoring Committee (FPMC) at his ministry.

Razzaque said, "We hope this will have an impact on the falling paddy prices in the market, and farmers will benefit."

He mentioned that production cost of Boro paddy this year has been estimated at Tk 15.76 a kg and that of milled rice at Tk 24.27 a kg. Last year, the government procured 8.5 lakh tonnes of Boro rice at Tk 29 a kg. The announcement on public purchase of rice came at a time when prices of Boro paddy are falling. Field reports from different districts say farmers are selling paddy at aroundTk400a maund (37kg). The food minister, however, said the government has reports that paddy

prices range from Tk 500 to 530 a maund. "We are not much worried over paddy prices at present, but we apprehend fall of prices as peak harvest of Boro starts in a week. Therefore, we are buying more rice this season [compared to last season], and if needed, will buy even more than 10 lakh tonnes,"

Razzaque said. The government now has a food stock of 12.5 lakh tonnes while its storage capacity is 17 lakh tonnes.

"By September, a substantial quantity of food will be released through regular ration programme for the BGB and Ansars. Apart from that, we will distribute food through other safetynet programmes like Food for Work and Open Market Sales so that we can buy and stock the newrice," saidtheminister. The government has estimated rice production to be 1.87 crore tonnes this Boro season compared to 1.86 crore tonnes last season. Meanwhile, the commerce ministry will issue an order shortly allowing export of aromatic rice.

There is, however, no plan until now to export coarse rice, Razzaque said.

Boro rice meets around 60 percent of the country's annual food requirement of over three crore tonnes. Asked about criticisms that it is the millers who mainly benefit from the public procurement of rice, Razzaque said the farmers cannot supply paddy with the minimum moisture level as required by the government. And it is a hurdle to buying paddy directly from the farmers.

The FPMC meeting chaired the food minister was attended by Agriculture Minister Matia Chowdhury, Finance Minister AMA Muhith, Commerce Minister GM Quader, the prime minister's finance adviser Mashiur Rahman and secretaries of the ministries concerned.

May 5-6.

The Indian minister is not keen to discuss the pending bilateral issues and Indian promises to Bangladesh as the foreign ministers of the two countries will hold discussions at the maiden Indo-Bangla Joint Commission Meeting scheduled for May 7-9 in New Delhi, sources at the foreign ministry said.

Pranab will not have any official meeting with his Bangladesh counterpart Abul Maal Abdul Muhith excepting a brief call on for a few minutes.

He will meet Leader of the Opposition Khaleda Zia, but the schedule of the meeting could not be confirmed.

Pranab will visit Bangladesh as the representative of the Indian government to the inaugural session of the closing ceremony of the joint celebration of 150th birth anniversary of Rabindranath Tagore, according to a foreign ministry press release.

A seven-member official delegation and a media team will accompany him.

He will call on Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina and senior leadership of the government to discuss issues of mutual interest.

"The visit of Pranab Mukherjee is part of the sustained engagement between the leadership of Bangladesh and India for harnessing available synergies and commonalities for mutual benefit," said the release.

According to his tour itinerary, Pranab will arrive in Dhaka from Manila on May 5 at 9:00pm.

The following day, he will attend the closing ceremony of Tagore's birth anniversary at Bangabandhu International Convention

Gono Bhaban at noon. He will have lunch with the Pranab will then have an interaction with a select for about half an hour. He will fly for New Delhi at 5:30pm.

Bangladesh and India last year had drawn up year-long celebration programme to mark the 150th birth anniversary of Rabindranath Tagore.

An Indian cultural delegation will participate in the programme at the BICC, said a press release of Indian High Commission in Dhaka.

The delegation includes Sharmila Tagore, Pabitra Bhushan Sircar and a dance drama group of Sangeet Natak Academy.

The compressor will boost the pressure to over 1,100 pounds per square inch and the high-pressure gas will then be returned into the pipeline system from where it will flow south to Ashuganj, Dhaka and western Bangladesh at a rate of over 1.1 billion cubic feet per day.

The new facility will come as a relief to the businesses, industries, power plants and fertiliser plants, whose operations have been being disrupted due to a shortage of gas supply. Even if they got gas, the pressure remained too low.

Speaking as the chief guest at the inaugural function, Sheikh Hasina thanked the US energy giant for completing the project within the stipulated time. She said her government

In a more bizarre fashion, the wife of the missing politician goes on a search for her husband in the company of security forces, then meets the leader of the opposition and emerges to deny before the country that she was out on a search at all.

Meanwhile, it is the young people of the country, those aspiring to move on to higher education through qualifying at the HSC examinations, who remain uncertain about their immediate future. They are not sure if tomorrow they can appear for the next step in the ongoing examinations. The acting secretary general of the BNP gives us what he believes is a thought everyone will appreciate. The son of the missing Ilias Ali, says he, is also a candidate for the HSC examinations but is weighed down, naturally, by thoughts of his vanished father. We understand the psychological predicament of Ilias Ali's son, indeed of his family.

What the BNP acting secretary general does not appear to understand is the terrible crudity with which tens of thousands of HSC examinees and their guardians have been thrown into deep mental anguish by the insensitivity associated with these hartals. The truth, at this point of time, is that politics is in a deep slide toward regression. Or you could even suggest that where a revival of politics, in that very modern, renaissance sense of the meaning, was the goal following the general elections of December 2008, it is today the very reverse of that goal the nation hap- acceptable. pens to be going through. Anti-politics has become the order of the day.

That a government enjoying a vast majority in parliament and therefore vast powers is not necessarily competent government is a fact demonstrated all too well in the more than three years which have elapsed since January 2009. The death of citizens in "crossfire" has gone on, with the authorities unable to explain why the security forces are so trigger-happy. Worse, the terrible malady of disappearances, something we thought was once associated with South America in the old dictator-driven days, is now part of Bangladesh's anti-politics culture. A goodly number of citizens have been abducted in these past many months. Some have been found dead, but most have remained untraced. That is not what you expect in a democracy. And yet Ilias Ali and all those others before him have disappeared in all the aura of democracy which does not quite look like democracy as it should be. That is not

It is not acceptable that the government cannot trace Ilias Ali inasmuch as it is not acceptable that it remains unable to dig into the truth behind the murder of a Saudi diplomat, of a journalist couple, of so many others across the country. In a functioning democracy, parliament should be in full mastery of conditions; the government ought to be looking to the welfare of every citizen; the opposition, even as it disagrees with the powers that be, must convince the nation it has its interests uppermost in mind. In a pluralistic system of governance, trains should be running on time; offices must work round the clock; traffic must run smoothly on the streets; classrooms should pulsate with ideas; and citizens must feel secure in the thought that their politicians, both in power and outside, respect them, that the state is there to assure them that their lives and property are safe, that their future will be positively different from their past.
