Deadly clashes rock Egypt

Curfew imposed; two dead; 300 wounded

AFP, Cairo

Calm returned to Cairo yesterday after Egypt's military rulers imposed an overnight curfew around the defence ministry following fierce clashes between troops and protesters that killed two people.

The unrest comes ahead of the landmark presidential polls amid fears by many Egyptians that the military rulers will renege on a pledge to hand power to civilian rule after the election and that the vote will be rigged.

The presidential election is scheduled for May 23 and 24 with a run-off for June 16 and 17 if there is no outright winner.

Egypt's military yesterday arrested 300 people over the deadly clashes and imposed a new overnight curfew for the second successive night, a military source told AFP.

Military prosecutors said the 300, including nine journalists, "will be held for 15 days pending investigation" into clashes in the Abbassiya district on Friday that left two people including a soldier dead and at least 300 injured.

A security official confirmed the number and said more arrests could be made.

Mini fund stymies local progress

Local body representatives lament govt's control

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Representatives of local government bodies yesterday said they could not take up many development projects due to poor allocation of funds and lack of the authority to collect taxes locally.

At a dialogue, speakers including a former election commissioner recommended that local government elections be held through direct nominations from political parties to make parties in power more accountable to the grassroots.

"Till date, the central government has been controlling and managing programmes for grassroots-level development. As a result, the local government institutions suffer from resource crunch," said Selina Hayat Ivy, mayor of

We mourn

We announce with profound sadness the loss of our colleague Mohammed Mohiuddin, who was tragically killed by armed miscreants in the western Afghanistan province of Ghor last Thursday (Inna Lillah ... Rajeun). Mohiuddin joined BRAC in 1999 and had spent the last 13 years working tirelessly to create new opportunities for the most downtrodden people in society. Since 2009, he had been working closely with the Afghan communities on the livelihood improvement project of BRAC Afghanistan.

Mohiuddin, of Fulbaria in Mymensingh district, has left behind his wife, two children, family and many friends and well-wishers. His untimely death is also an irreparable loss for BRAC. We express our deepest condolences to the bereaved family and commit to stand by their side in these difficult times.
