

PLANT FESTIVAL WITH GREEN REMINDER

FROM cactus to orchids, from fruit bearing trees almost full grown to saplings and bonsais, everything was there. And they were there to send the message that we need to plant trees and take care of our environment. The Department of Environment held a month-long plant fair at the Agargaon fair ground in the capital, attracting gardening enthusiasts, planters and even people who just needed a plant on their window sill. The fair ended last Thursday. It could be said that it touched city dwellers' hearts and reminded them of their responsibility to save the environment and their obligation to keep the capital as green as possible.

Photo: RASHED SHUMON

