Starting September with the Rusty Ramblers

Rusty Ramblers created an atmosphere where they actually made the audience feel that they were a part of the performance. almost each and every song such a kick that beautifully.

For the members of American Alumni Asso ciation (AAA) and their guests, the beginning of this new month could not have been better. On the first of September, AAA hosted a private concert introducing the Rusty Ramblers on Floor 6, Banani, Dhaka. For most of us mainstream music lovers, we might not be well acquainted with this band but if you are a fan of old school clas sic rock and blues, then you would surely enjoy their covers of songs of the Beatles, Elvis Presley and others.

Unlike most concerts, the Rusty Rambler created an atmosphere where they actually made the audience feel that they were a par of the performance. Floor 6 became one big happy, singing family. The lead vocalist of the band, Rahil Farhad, gave the crowd an amazing performance with covers of popular songs such as "With or Without You" and "Touch Me". If one had to close his/her eyes and listen to the voice of this vocalist, it would definitely remind them of the great Jack Black from "Tenacious D".

The band did not stick to covering songs traditionally; they improvised a lot and succeeded beautifully.

Sascha Pinkas (saxophonist) gave could have dropped your jaws and given you goose bumps. Labu Rahman (the lead guitarist) played the best face-melting solos anyone might have heard in recent times, along with gut busting drum solos and perfect beats by Nafeez Al Amin (drummer). The band completes with Zahid Ahmed and Saad Chowdhury.

The concert was more sophisticated than most because of crowd control. One had to be a member of AAA to attend the concert and the members could bring their guests. It was great to see how people inside the concert would not stop singing each and every song with a big smile on their faces.

With tasty appetizers from the menu of Floor 6 on their hands, the audience undoubtedly had a great time, enjoying covers of Dire Straits and Pink Floyd. "I didn't think that it was going to be so good. I mean, you hear people covering Dire Straits and Eric Clapton songs all the time but for some reason, the Rusty Rambler covers are almost so realistic that I actually feel that this is the closest I can get to Clapton performing live," said Mahabub Ashrafy

All in all, it's safe to say that for AAA members and their guests Saturday evening was an awesome one. Hats off to the organisers who arranged the concert so

The exhibition was organised by Yapri, an art initiative group. At the inaugural session, artists and teachers of the Institute of Fine Arts, Chittagons University Dhali Al Mamun, Dilara Begum Jolly, Nasima Akter, Kajol Deb Nath and Alok Roy, whose works were on display, were present among others. At the exhibition a video art work directed by Tareque Masud and photographed by Mishuk Munier was shown. All of the art works featured the chaotic condition of our transport system and apathy of the administration.

About 35 artworks were on display at the exhibition. Participating artists had used different mediums including acrylic, oil, and mixed media in their paintings. Various sculptures, installations, and video art were also exhibited.

Artists who participated in the exhibition were Razib Dutta, Maherun Akter Shumi, Saem Mahamud, Kingshuk Dash, Faraha Naz Moon, Arup Barua, Sohorab Jahan, Palash Chowdhury and Sonjoy Chakraborty.

Bhawaiya festival begins in Rangpur Banglalink extends patronage MEHEDY HASAN, Rangpur Rights Commission (NHRC), Tajul Islam

Bhawaiya songs have been an integral part of the culture of Rangpur division from time immemorial. People from the region are deeply attached to the dialectic genre that is coupled with moving music. With the passage of time, Bhawaiya has become more exquisite and refined. Artistes of repute such as Abbasuddin, Harolal Roy, Mahesl Chandra and Kachim Uddin have enriched Bhawaiya with their melodious renditions. Even today there is a great deal of talent in the region. However, due to the absence of patronage, cultural organisations in the region have not flourished. This is where Banglalink comes in, says seasoned Bhawaiya artiste of Rangpur, Sirajul

Islam, "For the second time the mobile phone operator has extended patronage for the Bhawaiya Festival in Rangpur," points out Islam. Chief guest Professor Dr. Mizanur Rahman chairman of National Human Rights Commission (NHRC), inaugurated the three-day Bhawaiya Festival, sponsored by Banglalink and organised by Sound Touch last Thursday evening at Rangpur Central Shaheed Minar
