Undisclosed luggage bogs Biman down

Unscrupulous staff minting money at expense of the airline

SHARIFUL ISLAM

A section of Biman employees are helping transport tonnes of undisclosed cargo and luggage on Biman's international flights to make a quick buck, putting the airline's safety at risk.

A pilot of the national carrier told The Daily Star that before take-off, pilots are provided with information about the weight the aircraft is carrying. And according to that information, the pilots determine the take-off speed and make other calculations such as how much fuel is needed.

If pilots are given incorrect weight figures, it may render their calculations way off the mark and even force them to make unscheduled stops for refuelling, said the pilot.

Excess weight costs extra fuel for each flight, and pilots on several occasions had to consider emergency landing so that the aircraft doesn't run out of fuel.

PADMA BRIDGE FINANCING

No breach of consensus

Claims Muhith; Adviser Mashur says he won't object to long leave

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Finance Minister AMA Muhith yesterday said there was no breach of the understanding on which the World Bank reengaged in the Padma bridge project.

Muhith, however, did not clarify the issue of leave of Prime Minister's Economic Affairs Adviser Mashur Rahman.

There is no problem now in implementing the project. "It is a

Obama focuses on turnout, Romney on Pennsylvania

AGENCIES

Just two days from the finish, President Barack Obama's campaign is mobilising a massive get-out-the-vote effort aimed at carrying the Democrat to victory, as Republican Mitt Romney makes a late play for votes in Democratic-leaning Pennsylvania.

Both campaigns were predicting wins in tomorrow's election. Obama was closing out the campaign with an apparent edge in some key battleground states, including Ohio. But Romney's campaign was projecting momentum and banking on late-breaking voters to propel him to
