West declares support for united Syrian opposition

Israel in 'direct hits' on Syria targets as fighting rages near Golan line

AFP, Washington, Jerusalem, Turkey

The United States late Sunday declared its support for the united Syrian opposition after various groups opposed to the government of President Bashar al-Assad decided to come together following talks in Doha, Qatar.

"We look forward to supporting the National Coalition as it charts a course toward the end of Assad's bloody rule and the start of the peaceful, just, democratic future that all the people of Syria deserve," State department deputy spokesman Mark Toner said in a statement.

Britain hailed the agreement as an "important milestone in forming a broad and representative opposition that reflects the full diversity of the Syrian people."

Qatar, which along with neighbouring Saudi Arabia, has been a leading champion of the Syrian opposition, has already said it is ready to recognise a provisional government that the National Coalition plans to form.

Meanwhile, Israeli troops fired tank shells into Syria yesterday, confirming "direct hits" on the source of a mortar round that struck the Golan Heights as tensions flared along the ceasefire line.

The exchange marked the second straight day that Israeli troops have been drawn into the Syrian conflict and came just hours after an appeal for restraint from all sides by UN chief Ban Ki-moon. On Sunday, Israeli troops fired a warning shot across the UNmonitored ceasefire line in response to Syrian fire, in the first instance of Israeli fire directed at the Syrian military in the Golan

PETRAEUS PROBE

US Congress to grill spy chiefs

AFP, Washington

Fresh reports piled pressure yesterday on FBI and CIA officials to explain the circumstances and timing of an investigation that ended the storied career of spy chief David Petraeus just three days after President Barack Obama's re-election.

Petraeus resigned as head of the Central Intelligence Agency on Friday after admitting an extramarital affair, sparking concerns of a security breach.

Meanwhile, US media identified the other woman as 37-year-old Jill Kelley, a "social liaison" to a Florida air force base who apparently had a longstanding friendship with Petraeus but no official status in the military.

Another quake hit Guatemala

AFP, Guatemala City

A strong 6.2-magnitude earthquake struck off the Pacific coast of Guatemala on Sunday, just days after a tremor in the same area left 42 people dead, Guatemalan President Otto Perez said.

The aftershock, which struck at 2215 GMT, triggered some landslides but "fortunately we have no human losses to lament," Perez told reporters.

The Pacific Tsunami Warning Center said there was "no destructive widespread tsunami threat" based on the data.

Australia announces abuse probe

AFP, Sydney

Australian Prime Minister Julia Gillard yesterday announced a national inquiry into institutional responses to child sex abuse after a series of scandals involving paedophile priests.

Gillard made the announcement following claims by a senior policeman that the Catholic Church in the Hunter Valley of New South Wales destroyed evidence and silenced investigations.

"There have been too many revelations of adults who have averted their eyes from this evil," the prime minister said.

Abu Qatada wins appeal

AFP, London

Terror suspect Abu Qatada will be released on bail today after he won his appeal against extradition to Jordan.

The Special Immigration Appeals Commission, a semi-secret panel of British judges that deals with decisions on national security, granted the Islamist preacher bail despite Britain's vow to continue its fight to deport him.

They ruled there was a risk of evidence obtained by torture being used against him if he was returned to Jordan.

Iran launches air drill

AFP, Tehran

Iran yesterday launched an air defence exercise a general said was aimed at optimising its deterrent capabilities as well as sending a "strong warning" to those threatening it with military strikes.

The start of the manoeuvres, originally scheduled for early October but postponed without an official explanation, was announced on the website of the Revolutionary Guards, sepahnews.com.

They drill comes against a backdrop of growing tension in Gulf, but appears unconnected to an incident last week when two Iranian fighter jets fired on an unarmed US drone.

Xi Jinping emerges most powerful in China

Hu Jintao to step down as military chief

Xi Jinping

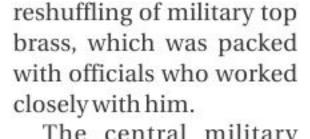

PTI, Beijing

China's new leader in waiting, Xi Jinping will have a surprise head-start to emerge as the most influential leader, as outgoing President Hu Jintao has reportedly decided to step down from all posts including the all-powerful post of the military chief.

Xi, 59, currently the VP is expected to be formally nominated as the general secretary of the ruling Communist Party at the end of the ongoing 18th Communist Party Congress on its last day on November 14. Scorching speculation, Hu has decided to formally relinquish his position as military chief at the end of the party Congress, Hong Kongbased 'South China Morning Post' quoted officials as saying.

Hu's decision to opt for complete retirement has surprised many analysts as he was expected to keep the top job of the chairman of the central military commission, especially in the backdrop of recent 1962 border war and improved ties.

The central military commission overseas all aspects of 2.3 million strong military.

Xi is currently it's vice chairman. Turning 70 next month, Hu technically will be stepping down as party chief and as president after the Congress on November 14.

But the formal transfer of power was expected to take place early next year.

Hu's complete departure from party and military is watched closely in India as he is widely regarded as one of post Mao Zedong Chinese leaders who rebalanced ties with India bringing an element of "strategic equilibrium" to otherwise pro-

Myanmar struggles to reach quake victims

AFP, Thabeikkyin, Myanmar

Myanmar rescuers struggled yesterday to help villagers hit by an earthquake that aid agencies said killed at least 13, injured dozens and caused a bridge and mine to collapse.

A series of powerful aftershocks rattled nerves after Sunday's 6.8magnitude quake, which sent terrified people running from homes and hotels in the country's second-biggest city of Mandalay and surrounding villages.

Authorities said they were providing help to victims, including those without shelter after more than one hundred homes were damaged, but that communication problems made it difficult to assess the scale of the destruction.

Ex-BBC boss starts at NY Times

REUTERS, New York

The New York Times Co said it would proceed with its plan for Mark Thompson to take over as CEO, despite an intensifying scandal at the BBC that has raised questions about his tenure at Britain's flagship broadcasting company.

"He is going to be CEO beginning November 12," a New York Times spokesman said on Sunday.

The New York Times maintained its confidence in the paper's new chief following the news that George Entwistle, the director-general of the BBC, said he was resigning from the broadcaster on Saturday. Entwistle took the blame for a news program at its flagship Newsnight, which aired a mistaken allegation that a former British senior politician sexually abused children.

The latest embarrassment comes as the BBC faces police and other investigations into claims that hundreds of people, some as young as 12, were sexually abused over the course of decades by one of their top personalities, the late Jimmy Savile.
