Agora to get its food items tested by a government research organisation before selling to customers

STAR BUSINESS REPORT

Retail chain Agora will sell fruits, vegetables, fish, meat and processed foods, tested by a research organisation of the government, in a bid to provide safe and hygienic food items to consumers.

Rahimafrooz Superstores Ltd, the owning company of Agora, and Bangladesh Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (BCSIR), yesterday signed an agreement to this effect.

Rahimafrooz, on a regular basis or occasionally, will send food samples to the research organisation from every batch of its fresh vegetables, fruits, raw and processed products that come from the suppliers.

BCSIR will test these food items against national standards, according to the memorandum of understanding signed at the organisation's office in Dhaka.

"We hope customers will find the tested food items in our stores from December 1," said Niaz Rahim, managing director of Ahmad Ismail Mustafa, chairman of Bangladesh Council of Scientific Research (BCSIR), and Niaz Rahim, managing director of Rahimafrooz Superstores, shake hands after signing a deal in Dhaka yesterday.

Rahimafrooz's chain supermarket Agora will use BCSIR's technology to ensure safe and hygienic foods for consumers. Middle, Yeafesh Osman, state minister for science and ICT, is also seen.
