

OUR WINTER OF GOOD CHEER

NOW that the season is changing, a number of winter vegetables, especially the leafy and bright coloured ones, have arrived in the city markets. The good news is that the prices of these rich sources of nutrition are also within the reach of the common people. That will surely keep customers in good spirits. And not only that. Even the farmers say they have harvested a good crop of vegetables this season and have been making good profits through sales of their produce. Beans, tomatoes, spinach, beet, turnip, radish, carrots, cauliflower, cabbage, cucumber, gourd, snake gourd, ladies' finger, potatoes, green peas and green papayas are being sold at different markets as well as in chain stores across the city. One can, of course, expect that much the same is happening elsewhere in the country. Winter, where vegetables are concerned, is always a season to savour. It promises to remain that way as the colour of the skies go through a transformation.
