Pacer Rubel Hossain conceded 29 runs in the last over as Samuels mesmerised with four sixes and one boundary to reprise the heroics of his match-winning knock in the final of the World Twenty20 in Sri Lanka. The common feeling was that this fateful over ultimately made the difference as Bangladesh fell 18 runs short of the formidable target of 198. But Tamim was not ready to single out any player for the defeat, pointing out that as a team they conceded 10 to 15 runs more.

"It would not be wise to identify Rubel as the reason for the defeat because as we all know the world's best bowlers also meet this fate. Instead I think that we gave 10-15 runs more as a team. Just think of the matter in another way -- what would have happened if Rubel didn't provide the two early breakthroughs. I think we should give Rubel confidence because he is still young and

Player-of-the-match: Marshal Ayub.

Michel impressed with forwards

SPORTS REPORTER

When it comes the international fixtures, Bangladesh suffer mostly from lack of quality strikers. There isn't any short fix as yet, but may be in the longer run Bangladesh may find a few quality strikers who will find the net regularly. At least the FIFA technical staff are hoping so as they have picked six hitmen in the 27-member U-18 squad for the Bangladesh Football Federation (BFF) Academy in Sylhet yesterday.

FIFIA's technical consultant Jean Michel himself was impressed seeing the number of forwards in the selected 27 as the BFF coaching staff and FIFA technical staff took nearly one hour to finalise the final 27 players after the completion of short-duration matches among 80 players who came to this stage through the Upazila, Zilla and Division level.

"We have found some good players here. We are happy to have found six strikers in the final selection," Michel told reporters at the Bangabandhu National Stadium yesterday. "We have been working in different parts of the world but we hardly got a so many strikers at such a level.

"There are many talented players around the world but not everyone has the finishing quality because scoring goal is a hard job. One who does this job well is remembered, that is why people know the names of Messi and Rolando and strikers like Gerd Mueller is still recalled after 30 years.

"The thing is that we have seen the mentality of becoming strikers among these selected forwards and I will come here after six months to see the progress of these footballers," said Michel.

Michel emphasized on the need for arranging five-a-side and seven-a-side football matches at the grassroots level so that the boys can enjoy the game as well as learn the basics of football.

Meanwhile, thirty-seven U-14 booters were also selected for the BFF Academy, which is expected to get underway in February.

an asset for our team," explained Tamim, who was also not disappointed for missing the hundred as the team comes first for him.

The opener, who was unbeaten on a 61-ball 88, was also not ready to blame his skipper and wicketkeeper Mushfiqur Rahim who wasted three chances behind the stumps, including two against Samuels, who made the difference by scoring a sensible yet explosive unbeaten 85 that came from 43 deliveries with the help of three fours and nine huge sixes.

Bangladesh played their last series of the year and Tamim said that it was the best year he has seen in his six years with the Bangladesh side.

"Without any doubt this was the best year because we probably won 5 to 6 matches out of nine and just consider our success in the Asia Cup and in the last series. I firmly believe that it's [the West Indies tour] one of the best series we have played," observed Tamim.

cricket and even the domestic structure is not that strong. The BCB (Bangladesh Cricket Board) should do something for the domestic structure.

DSS: Do you think the turning tracks in Bangladesh devalued the series win in any way?

SM: Look, you need support for your own strengths. I remember when we played against England in Pakistan, Darren Gough told the boys that when you come to England, we'll put grass in your kitbags and even in your rooms, because he couldn't find any grass on the pitch. It shows that everybody needs some support. As a professional cricketer though, you have to be able to bowl on every pitch and do well on any ground.

DSS: What is the main difference between the set-up here and your experiences elsewhere?

SM: It's a huge difference, huge. Here obviously you guys are going towards the right way, but outside they are already in the right way. They have more facilities, they are more disciplined. They have a proper system, more organised. BCB is organised as well, but they [other countries] are more. Cricket is an industry and they are running their industries better than us.

DSS: Will you be continuing your stint here?

SM: It depends on the BCB at the moment. I want a clear plan as to how they want to use me. So yeah, if things work out I would love to continue.

'Messidependence'

AFP, Madrid

Spain on Monday hailed Lionel "Missile" Messi's record-breaking 86-goal haul in 2012 and decreed Barcelona's "Messi-dependence" is a blessing.

The 25-year-old Argentine star smashed the 40-year-old record of German legend Gerd Mueller of 85 goals in a calendar year, with a first-half brace that sealed his side's 2-1 win in Seville at Real Betis.

"Missile Messi. Leo leaves Torpedo Muller behind with 86 goals in a year," cried the front page of Barcelona-based sports daily Sport.

"A Messi-anic victory," gushed the newspaper's columnist Josep Maria Casanovas of the Barca forward, who is also favourite to win a fourth player-of-the-year Ballon d'Or.

"We are lucky because we will always be able to say that we lived that wonderful year in which Messi scored 86 goals. It is a pleasure, a spectacle, a wonder to see the best player in the world in action," he said. Barcelona-based sports daily Mundo Deportivo said the team were dependent on the Argentine striker after he pushed them into winning territory in a tough match against Betis.

"Messi played. And just as well. His two goals gave Barca victory over a proud Betis," the paper said, hailing his "stratospheric record" of goals scored in a calendar year.

"Is there an absolute 'Messi-dependence'?" asked the paper's columnist Javier Gascon. "Yes. And so what? Thanks to that Tito Vilanova's team is leader with 14 victories and a draw in 15 matchdays."

Spain's biggest selling sports paper, Marca, agreed.

"Using the word 'Messidependence' has a certain negative connotation. As Barcelona was not capable of winning games but for its star. But in Barca they take it as a blessing. Yesterday, it was," the paper said.

"Having the Ballon d'Or in their ranks has been an undeniable privilege in the past three years," the paper said.

Mundo Deportivo had a word for his team mates, too.

Messi himself said the team was key even as he celebrated the new record after the game at Betis.

Barca coach Tito Vilanova looked forward to more to come from Messi, who now has 74 goals in all competitions for Barcelona this year as well as 12 for Argentina, having played 66 games in all.

His La Liga total is already up to 23 for this season alone and he can add to his year's tally with three games still to play in 2012 -- in La Liga against Atletico Madrid and Valladolid and the Spanish Cup tie at Cordoba.

will face competition from teammate Iniesta and Real Madrid rival Cristiano Ronaldo.

"If Iniesta wins, it will be well-deserved for all that he has done, for the way he plays. Again, it will also be a prize for the dressing room."

Barca coach Tito Vilanova looked forward to more to come from Messi, who now has 74 goals in all competitions for Barcelona this year as well as 12 for Argentina, having played 66 games in all.

His La Liga tally is already up to 23 for this season alone and he can add to his year's tally with three games still to play in 2012 -- in La Liga against Atletico Madrid and Valladolid and the Spanish Cup tie at Cordoba.

"It seems impossible to score so many goals, let's hope he can add to the record in the games to come," said Vilanova.

"He is still young and gives us so much, even tonight he helped us out defensively when we needed it, he has so many more qualities than just his goals."

Vilanova was quick, however, to dampen the euphoria surrounding his star player.

"We shouldn't heap more pressure on him. His record this year is absolutely brutal. Let's enjoy the moment and not focus on how many goals he might score in the future," added the coach.

Barca's sporting director, Andoni Zubizarreta, was happy to see Messi's praises.

"I think his records will be valued more in the future, it's one more for now but he makes it seem so easy it's hard to measure his talent," said Zubizarreta.

"It's a gift to see him play football but I think he'll say the same, it's a team game and he needs his team mates to help him."

Messi has made a habit of creating landmarks in his career.

Last season, he became the most successful scorer in a La Liga season by hitting 50 goals in the league campaign.

He is already the club's greatest scorer having last season gone past the record of 232 goals by Cesar Rodriguez set in the 1940s and 1950s.

He also equalled the record for goals scored in a Champions League season when he hit 14.

The Argentine star had insisted that breaking Mueller's record had never been his most pressing concern.

"Mueller's record isn't an obsession for me, but it would be good, because it's been there for a long time," he said in the run-up to Sunday's match.

the match.

Organising secretary of the series, Gazi Ashraf Hossain told reporters that he had reported the matter to the head of the Ticketing Committee and that there would be a thorough investigation into it.

Unavailability of tickets had earlier led to chaotic scenes around the venue on the morning of the third ODI on Wednesday as fans broke the window panes of the BCB headquarters at the stadium and also those of the adjoining National Cricket Academy.

While the BCB on the eve of the match had claimed that the tickets for that match had been sold out, empty seats in the stadium provided a contrasting picture.

Empty seats were also seen in the galleries during yesterday's match.
