AFP, Antwerp

Former world number one Kim Clijsters celebrated the end of her sparkling tennis career with a victory in an exhibition match against American rival Venus Williams on Wednesday.

The Belgian, who won 41 career singles titles, played her last official match at the US Open in August, but was keen to play for one last time in front of her home support.

With a crowd of 13,000 looking on, the 29-year-old beat Williams 6-3, 6-3.

Recalled Phil Hughes will bat at number three with Watson at four while skipper Michael Clarke and veteran Mike Hussey stay at five and six in the first Test match since the retirement of Ricky Ponting.

Sri Lanka have played 10 Tests in Australia but have never won.

"We'll bank on our experience with our batting. To win a Test match it's important to put runs on the board, we just need to score runs and give our bowlers a chance to get 20 wickets," Jayawardene said.

World short course meet starts in Istanbul

Swimming

AFP, Istanbul

US swim star Ryan Lochte bagged two golds on the opening day of the World Short Course Swimming Championships on Wednesday to add to the five medals he won in the London Olympics in the summer.

The American first led from start to finish to win the men's 200m freestyle before he teamed up with Anthony Ervin, James Feigen and Matthew Grevers to win the 4x100m freestyle relay.

Lochte was pushed hard by Germany's world record holder Paul Biedermann in the 200m freestyle, but he clocked 1min 41.92sec to claim his 15th career world short course championships gold medal.

The second gold was secured in a much tougher contest and needed anchor leg swimmer Grevers to chase down and overtake Russia's Artem Lobuzov and then hold off the late charge of Italy's Filippo Magnini to secure Lochte's 16th gold medal in the championships history.

Those two golds saw the US team sit atop the medals standings at the end of day one, with the USA women adding a third gold by winning the final race of the day, the 4x200m freestyle relay.

The quartet of Megan Romano, Chelsea Chenault, Shannon Vreeland and Allison Schmitt were pushed all the way by Russia, but Schmitt's greater strength over the final 200m brought them home in front.

Elsewhere it was a good day for eastern

European women. Hungary's Katinka Hosszu set a competition record of 2:02.20 when she won gold in the 200m butterfly and in doing so became the first Hungarian woman to win a medal in championship history.

Hosszu returned to the pool 30 minutes later to overhaul compatriot Zsuzsanna Jakabos in the final stages of the women's 400m individual medley and win bronze behind Great Britain's Hannah Miley and Ye Shiwen of China.

Lithuania's 15-year-old Olympic champion Ruta Meilutyte meanwhile twice broke the championship record on her way to the 50m breaststroke final. In the morning session she finished in 29.56 and then lowered it 29.51 in the semifinal.

Earlier in the day, the championships started in the Turkish capital, four months after the London Olympics but with notable absentees, including megastar Michael Phelps and teenage sensation Missy Franklin.

Phelps was never going to figure after taking his bow from the sport with 22 Olympic medals to his name, while 17-year-old Franklin -- who won four golds and bagged two world records in London -- declined to take part.

Also missing is 100m freestyle champion Nathan Adrian, who has an injured finger.

Instead, the competition features eight Olympic champions, among them Lochte, who is taking part in his third competitive event since leaving the British capital.

Cricket

AFP, Sydney

Australian cricket great Adam Gilchrist believes the one-day format is on an irreversible slide and will be "history" in three years, a report said on Thursday.

The trailblazing wicketkeeper-batsman fears the 50-over game, which has been losing its appeal in Australia since the ascent of Twenty20 cricket, will likely not last beyond the 2015 World Cup in Australia and New Zealand.

"I reckon about three years, as I see it, and it will be pretty much gone," Gilchrist, who made his name in Australia's one-day team before a brilliant 96-match Test career, told radio station Triple M.

"There is a World Cup in 2015 -- I believe TV deals are all locked away to get to that, and those commitments will be fulfilled. But after that I think it will be history.

"I suspect that one-day cricket may be obsolete in about three years' time," he added.

"I suspect that after that the appetite for it might diminish, and all the TV programmers and the administrators will be focusing on the two other forms (Twenty20 and Test cricket).

"Twenty20, let's face it, is the revenue stream that keeps the longer version alive."

More than 30 years after limited-overs cricket in coloured clothing took off in Kerry Packer's World Series revolution in Australia, crowds have dropped off dramatically in recent years -- a decline hastened by the Twenty20 boom.

A total of 456,264 spectators attended one-day internationals in the Australian summer of 1999-2000, a figure that plummeted to 251,916 last season.

Cricket Australia spokesman Peter Young said the governing body did not share Gilchrist's views.

"The World Cup is the world's fourth-biggest sporting event. It's got a viewing audience of a billion people," he told reporters.

"Our own research shows when you measure the affection of cricket with the Australian public that ODI cricket has still got a lot of life left in its legs."

MSC dominate Sheikh Russel

After resumption, Sheikh Russel stepped up the attack but left-back Ashraf Mahmud Linkon saw his well-judged cross brilliantly gripped by Mohammedan goalkeeper Mamun Khan in the 46th minute. In the same minute, Mohammedan's promising winger Shohel Rana saw Sheikh Russel goalkeeper Biplob thwart a powerful shot at the cost of a corner.

Mohammedan doubled the lead in the 69th minute when Augustine shrugged off his marker Rezaul Karim to place the ball to the far post with a left-footer.

Guided by stand-in coach Jewel Rana in the absence of the ailing Saiful Bari Titu, Mohammedan took the game away from Sheikh Russel in the 80th minute when Morison took advantage of a defensive fumble by Abass Inusah to fire home from outside the box.

Sheikh Russel hit back to pull one goal back in the 84th minute through Emily but their effort was not enough to avert their first defeat in their second match, following a win over Team BJMC.

"We were confident of winning the game as Sheikh Russel is a team we beat 2-0 in last season's league," Mohammedan striker Augustine said. "Actually we have implemented our strategy well on the pitch and if we can maintain this, we will be champions."

"I think the players were over-confident after winning the Federation Cup and paid the price for it. Besides, there were some defence lapses in the match and Mohammedan took advantage of those mistakes," said Sheikh Russel coach Maruful Haque.
