Tillakaratne Dilshan led a fighting counter-attack with a gutsy century as Sri Lanka trailed Australia by 141 runs with two days to play in the first Hobart Test on Sunday.

Dilshan batted for almost seven hours for his 147 and shared in a record Sri Lanka stand in Australia with Angelo Mathews to get the tourists within 114 runs of the home side's first innings of 450 for five declared.

The Australians tightened their grip on the match reaching third day stumps at 27 without loss and were in the box seat to press on for their first victory of the domestic summer after losing the recent three-Test series to South Africa.

At the close, Ed Cowan was on 16 with David Warner not out on eight.

Sri Lanka, boosted by Dilshan's 15th Test century and good play from Mathews (75) and Prasanna Jayawardene (40), were bowled out for 336.

Peter Siddle, leading the Australian attack in the absence of injured Ben Hilfenhaus, knocked over the Sri Lankan tail to finish with five for 54 off 25.3 overs.

"It's about pressing forward tomorrow, obviously it's going to be hard to start tomorrow morning for the batters, but they'll dig in and we've just got to play it from there and see how we go and see what target we can go with," Siddle said.

Dilshan's innings-saving effort came to an end when he was yorked by Mitchell Starc in the 98th over some 30 minutes after tea.

The 36-year-old right-hander hit 21 boundaries off 273 balls and was primarily responsible for getting Sri Lanka past the 251 follow on after the tourists were in strife at 87 for four at stumps on Saturday.

It was Dilshan's second century against Australia following his 104 at Galle in 2004.

He shared in a record 161-run stand with Mathews for the fifth wicket that took the momentum away from the Australians for a large part of the third day.

It eclipsed Aravinda de Silva and Ravi Ratnayake's previous best stand for Sri Lanka down under of 144 for the seventh wicket at Brisbane in 1989.

Siddle triggered a late wicket collapse, trapping Prasanna Jayawardene and Rangana Herath (0) both leg before wicket, before Nuwan Kulasekara was caught in the deep by substitute Jordan Silk off Nathan Lyon for 23.

Siddle mopped up the innings with the wicket of Chanaka Welegedara for a duck, snapped up at gully by Mike Hussey leaving the Australians 14 overs to negotiate to stumps.

Australia, down a bowler with Hilfenhaus off the field with a side strain, toiled hard for most of Sunday, with only Mathews's wicket to show for their efforts up to tea.

Vice-captain Mathews, who is expected to take over as skipper after Mahela Jayawardene announced he would be stepping down as captain after the Australia tour, was another Siddle lbw victim.

Australia's wicketkeeper Matthew Wade was left red-faced by a botched stumping of Kulasekara on three when he dropped the ball after the fast bowler jumped down the wicket to spinner Nathan Lyon.

Swing bowler Hilfenhaus left the field in the opening hour after delivering just two balls of his 13th over. Team officials said he had a left side strain and was taken to hospital for scans.

He had figures of 1-30 after claiming the wicket of Dimuth Karunaratne for 14 on Saturday.

Australia's fast bowling ranks have been hit hard with James Pattinson (side), Patrick Cummins (back) and Josh

Hazlewood (foot) all out of action.

Pattinson was ruled out for the Test season after suffering his injury during the second Test against South Africa in Adelaide, while Cummins is aiming to recover from stress fractures to his back for next year's Ashes tour.

Hilfenhaus unlikely to play

AFP, Hobart

Australia paceman Ben Hilfenhaus has a side strain and is not expected to bowl again in the first Hobart Test against Sri Lanka, team phsyio Alex Kountouris said on Sunday.

The Tasmanian swing bowler left the field after delivering just two balls of his 13th over in the opening hour of the third day's play in Hobart and later was taken to hospital for scans.

Kountouris said Hilfenhaus's injury was on the mild side but he could still miss the second Test, starting in Melbourne on Boxing Day.

"Ben's got a side injury. It's a typical fast bowler's injury where they get these side strains," Kountouris said.

"It's not too bad at the moment, but it's bad enough for him not to take the field and we'll see what he's like tomorrow in terms of his participation in the match, but it's looking doubtful that he will bowl again in the game."

Kountouris said the side injury was not as serious as the one that has sidelined fellow paceman James Pattinson for the rest of the Test season.

"They're completely different injuries, I call them side strains because they are in the same region but they are completely different injuries," he said.

Ryan keeps breaking 'em

 Swimming

American star Ryan Lochte kept up his phenomenal form at the world short course championships on Saturday when he set a world record 50.71 sec in the men's 100m individual medley semifinals.

On Friday, the five-time Olympic champion broke the 200m individual medley world record on his way to winning his fourth gold of the championships.

He was already under world record time by the end of the butterfly leg and he continued to eat into it over the following three laps.

Australia's Kenneth To recorded the second fastest time with 51.47 and George Bovell of Trinidad and Tobago was third with 51.66.

"I have the 200m backstroke final (before the 100m individual medley final) on Sunday so I knew if I wanted any shot at this record, it had to be tonight," said Lochte, who knocked .05sec off the old mark set by Slovenia's Peter Mankoc in 2009.

"I messed up in a couple of places tonight so I know there is some room for improvement."

In the women's 200m individual medley, China's Ye Shiwen attacked in the final 25m to win gold as she touched the wall in 2:04.64 to record a championship record

Arron bids sprinting adieu

AFP, Paris

Former European 100 metres sprint champion Christine Arron has announced that she is calling time on her career at the age of 39.

The Guadeloupe-born French runner was at her best in 1998 when she ran 10.73 seconds to win the European title in Budapest in a European record that stands to this day.

Arron remained among the top sprinters in the world for most of the next decade, taking third place over 100 meters and 200 metres at the 2005 World Championships, but her only Olympic medals came in the 4X100 metres relay at the 2000 and 2004 Games.

Subsequent to that she was often injured and she said that as she was pregnant for a second time, she had decided to draw the curtain on her career.

"After 35 years (of career), it's becoming harder and harder to stay fully fit," she told the Journal du Dimanche. "I would have liked to continue racing, but you have to draw a line under it one day."

Fences around

FROM PAGE 16 the western gallery after the completion of the first phase of the ongoing league in a bid to prevent the crowd from entering the pitch," league committee chairman and BFF's senior vice president Abdus Salam Murshedy said. "If the National Sports Council does not install the fences, the BFF will install it on its own accord."

Replying to a query about FIFA directives on removing barbed wire fences in a bid to ensure safety of the spectators, Salam said, "For security reason, we are going to install barbed wire fences but we will follow the FIFA/AFC instruction during any international matches that will be staged at the BNS."

In an effort to avoid dispute regarding match officials, the committee decided to finalise match officials from a panel, just half-an-hour before the start of any league match.

All to play for on final

FROM PAGE 16 Indian captain Mahendra Singh Dhoni kept shuffling his bowlers in a bid to break through the England innings but the English batsmen applied themselves well to keep the hosts at bay, much to the disappointment of a seizable holiday crowd.

England were at a shaky 94 for three at one stage with captain Alastair Cook (13), Nick Compton (34) and Kevin Pietersen (6) back in the pavilion but Trott and Bell ensured that there were no further setbacks with a defiant 67-run partnership.

Trott was however a little lucky as a confident appeal for caught behind off Ishant Sharma was turned down by umpire Kumar Dharmasena, leading to some heated words being exchanged between Trott and Virat Kohli after the over.

MacGill wants

FROM PAGE 16 old doing little to douse the speculation, recently saying "absolutely no doubt" he could bowl successfully at Test level again.

MacGill, who took 82 of his 208 Test wickets playing alongside Warne, said he would pick him.

"I'd play him," he told Sydney's Sun-Herald.

"Should he be picked? If any selector said he shouldn't be picked, that it's not in the best interests of Australian cricket, I laugh at them."

"I'm interested in Australian cricket winning. Not in 10 or 15 years, but every day."

"The best way to win in 10 or 15 years is for it to be on the tail end of a huge streak. You pick your best team on any given day and if Shane Warne is available, then he's in it."

Earlier this month, Warne said that if Australian skipper Michael Clarke suggested his services were needed for the Ashes campaign against England next year, he would give it some serious thought.
