Forty one years have passed since our heroes freed the country from the Pakistani oppressors, but how many of us know about the Freedom Fighters? We now celebrate Independence Day, Victory Day without having any clear idea about the life sketches and sentiments of those people who toiled to bring about Sonar Bangla. Many of those sacrificed their lives in the hope of a new country, but their feelings and experiences at the battlefields remained unknown to us.

The premiere of “Ekattorer Chithi” a docu-fiction adapted from a compilation of letters of the same title written by the Freedom Fighters was held on December 18 at Star Cineplex Bashundhara City. Directed by Aminul Akram, satellite television Ekattor TV has produced this visual representation of 26 letters which the Freedom Fighters wrote to their families and acquaintances during the Liberation War in 1971.

In the first segment of the programme, Ekattor TV's chief editor and managing director Mozammel Babu gave an introductory speech. He said named after 1971, Ekattor TV has been patronising many events in a bid to uphold the spirit of our Liberation War, and this docu-fiction is a part of its endeavor to spread the essence of independence among the new generations.

Ekattor TV's editor and CEO Samia Zaman described the inception of the idea of making this audio visual. Aminul Akram, director of the docu-fiction, termed his work as the audio visual representation of the spirit of '71.

Freedom Fighter Mujahidul Islam Selim walked down memory lane when he read aloud a letter which he had written to one of his comrades during the Liberation War.

In his speech, Information

Minister Hasanul Haq Inu spoke about his experiences during 1971. He welcomed the endeavour of Ekattor TV and said this docu-fiction will help create a bridge between the young generation and 1971.

Later in the evening, the third and final phase of the programme took place with the screening of the first and second episodes of the docu-fiction. These two episodes were the visual representation of Freedom Fighter martyred Colonel Khandoker Nazmul Huda's letter to his wife Nilufar Dil Afroz.
