UAE ROAD CRASH

Seven bodies arrive in Ctg

In his 60s, Idris Miah perhaps carried the heaviest thing in his lifetime yesterday--the coffins of his two sons who were killed in the United Arab Emirates (UAE) road accident on February 4.

The two--Khorshed Alam, 24, and Masud Rana, 18--were buried in their North Sartta village in Raosan upazila.

Idris and Hasina Begum have now only one child left--a daughter.

Seven bodies of the 19 Bangladeshis, who died in the tragedy with three other foreign nationals, reached Chittagong's Amanat International Airport yesterday morning.

In Anwara upazila, Borhan's mother passed out frequently, who came to know of her son's death only two days ago.

Jahangir, eldest brother of Borhanudin, 26, said he hid the news as his mother was ill. Borhan was the youngest of the three sons of Anwara Begum and Shah Alam of Khaskama village.

A pall of gloom enveloped Fatikchhari as four of the victims lived there.

Nur Nahar Lucky, mother of 22-year-old Md Arif, cried so much that she got so frail. "Who will call me 'ma'?" wondered the mother. Arif was whose only child.

Md Hashem, 42, of Dakkhin Paindong village had lived in UAE for the last 10 years. His family of five-- his wife, three daughters and a son--is now in deep uncertainty.

So are the families of Md Alauddin, 38, of Dakkin Paindong village and Sirajul Islam, 42, of Uttar Paindong village.

All of the victims were buried. Officials said the remaining 12 bodies would arrive home by February 13.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Jahangir Alam, a joint secretary to the expatriates' welfare ministry, yesterday handed over a cheque of Tk 35,000 to each of the seven families as burial cost.

An additional Tk 2 lakh will be donated to each of the families later, said Mohsin Chowdhury, director, Bureau of Manpower, Employment and Training, Chittagong.

DU Shibir leader pushed off third floor

DU CORRESPONDENT

Dhaka University students pushed an Islami Chhatra Shibir leader off Haji Muhammad Mohsin Hall's third floor and beat up two other leaders last night.

Rakib, the hall's Shibir unit president and of political science department, was admitted to Dhaka Medical College Hospital after being pushed off.

Sanaullah Pritom, the hall's Shibir unit general secretary and of law department; and Noki, the hall's Shibir unit organising secretary and of development studies department; were handed over to police.

Students beat up the three, who admitted to be Shibir leaders, said police. Students said the three were posing as Bangladesh Chhatra League activists but the students found a list of Shibir activists in their rooms.
