MESSAGE IN A BOTTLE

Will the next parliamentary election be held on time? Perhaps, this is the biggest question that has been thrown at the ordinary people of the country. And it is difficult, impossible almost, to give a certain answer to the question right now. If anybody attempts to answer this question s/he must use some ifs and buts and mention the role of some other "non-political players." It clearly indicates that the sky is clouded with the growing possibility of the country being hit by a political Tsunami again.
