BANGABANDHU BRIDGE
Toll money gobbled up
Overloaded trucks cross Jamuna in exchange for bribes

M ABUL KALAM AZAD, back from Bangabandhu Bridge

The Bangabandhu Multipurpose Bridge, which plays a vital role in the country's economy, commerce and communications, has become a hub of corruption and making quick bucks.

The toll plazas and weighing machines of the 4.8-kilometre-long bridge are the two main sources of illegal income for some officials and employees concerned.

Built over the Jamuna river in 1998, the bridge established rail road, gas and power connections between the country's northwestern region and the capital.

Investigation says siphoning off toll money has become an open secret, while taking bribes from overloaded truckers to let them cross the bridge takes place at night. Weight machines installed on either side of the bridge also remain inoperative many times to facilitate passage of overloaded vehicles.

Yusuf faces war crimes probe
Investigators claim to have evidence against the Jamaat leader; report this week

TUHIN SHUBHRA ADHIKARY

The investigation agency's probe into war crimes committed allegedly by Jamaat-e-Islami leader AKM Yusuf, historically known as the founder of the Razakar force, is almost done and it is planning to submit a report this week.

Agency officials said they found evidence of Yusuf's "involvement" in genocide, murders, arson, looting, forced religious conversion of people and deportation during the Liberation War in 1971.

Sanaul Huq, a senior member of the agency, told The Daily Star on Thursday, "We will hand over the probe report [to the prosecution] within next week [this week]."

The agency, through the prosecution, would also seek an arrest warrant from the tribunal for the 84-year-old Jamaat nayebe-e-ameer, he added.

Helal Uddin, investigation officer of the case, said Yusuf established the Razakar force, an auxiliary force of the Pakistani army, on May 5, 1971, at an Ansar camp on Khan Jahan Ali Road in

She asked BNP Chairperson Khaleda Zia why the opposition leader was destroying the student life of the Higher Secondary Certificate (HSC) examinees by calling hartals.

Migrants' plight in Greece
AP, Athens, Greece

After months of pressing the strawberry plantation over pay, the Bangladeshi migrant labourers gathered in the field hoping that a deal was near. Instead, foremen peppered them with gunfire, wounding 28.

The bloodletting this week in Greece's southern strawberry fields shocked the nation and put the spotlight on the plight of the financial crisis' overlooked victims: hundreds of thousands of migrant workers, many undocumented, whose lot is becoming even tougher amid rising racist violence and dropping living standards.

After a two-day manhunt, Greek authorities on Friday arrested three suspects in the shootings, which drew strong condemnation from the government, political parties and labour unions. The men, aged 21, 27 and 39, face multiple charges of attempted murder.

"As long as the crisis worsens, barbaric acts will find an outlet," said Nikitas Kanakis, head of the Greek branch of the Doctors of the World medical aid group.

Police said the shootings near the village of Manolada
