Patuakhali registry office is running at a dilapidated building, posing life risk to around 200 staff as well as the people who came here to get their work done.

During a visit to the building on Monday, this correspondent found cracks at several places of the building. Chunks of plaster from roofs and walls were seen at quite a few places on the floor. Rods of the roof became visible and electric cables were hanging at many places.

Constructed in 1967-68 fiscal year, the building houses the district registry office on the first floor and Sadar upazila sub-registry office on the ground floor.

Several lakhs of land record books (locally called balam boi) preserved since 1901 are also vulnerable to damage by rainwater that easily enters the building through the walls, said Sultan Ahmed, record keeper of the office.

A total 106 employees including deed writers, searchers and copyists submitted a prayer to the district registrar on Monday to shift the office to a safe place.

Accident may occur any time as the building is in a very bad condition, said District Registrar Md Abed Hossain.

"We are working here amid risk as often chunks of plaster falls off. Rainwater seeps into the dilapidated building causing damage to valuable documents," said Sohrab Hossain, office assistant of Sadar upazila sub-registry office.

"We sent several letters to the higher authority concerned for reconstruction of the building but in vain," said Md Mizanur Rahman, sub-registrar for Patuakhali Sadar upazila.

The government earns around Tk 40 crore annual revenue from the office.

Over 100-metre-long road connecting the office is also in a bad condition. Rainwater stands on the road, much to the sufferings to office staff and visitors.

When contacted, Kamruzzaman, executive engineer for Patuakhali Public Works Department, said, "We did repair works spending Tk 30 lakh since 1998 to keep the building usable for office. Now it has become too old and risky. We will send an estimate to the higher authorities soon to reconstruct the building."

Unique Unicef move helps Kaptai kids attend schools

SHANTIMOY CHAKMA, Rangamati

At least 2000 kids in the district are now getting access to quality primary education in a child-friendly atmosphere, thanks to a Unicef project taken in Kaptai Lake area.

With an objective to increase access to better primary education as well as learning opportunities for the children in remote areas of Kaptai, Unicef is implementing the project.

Twenty-one government primary schools in three upazilas -- Rangamati Sadar, Bilaichhari and Barkal -- of the district have been brought under the project titled 'Child Friendly School for the Children of Kaptai Lake Area, Rangamati'.

The project helps reduce the dropout rates because those who can not reach the schools due to lack of engine boats in the lake areas can now use Unicef supplied shuttle boats with life jackets.

Consultant of Unicef, Rangamati office Rita Chakma said, 15 schools in Sadar upazila and three each in Bilaichhari and Barkal upazilas have been brought under the five-year project (2012-16) launched in December last year.

Moreover, adolescent boys and girls in the project areas will also be benefited due to improved access to information and technology through resource centres set up in schools.

A desktop computer with an Internet modem, a solar module, a bookshelf, almirah and some technical books have been provided in the resource centres.

A man will be employed to run the centre, said Rita Chakma, the consultant of Unicef.

The victim's family said that a gang kidnapped her from a human hauler (Nasimon) and took her to a field when she was returning home from Ishwardi EPZ at about 8:30pm.

Special training on swimming is also being provided to the kids so that they can swim across the lake in case of any accident during the journey to the school.

Alongside these activities, during implementation of the project the existing school buildings will be renovated and repaired to ensure hundred percent attendance at schools.

Mita Chakma, a teacher of Golachhara Government Primary School, said many students from far-flung areas were now coming to schools by the engine boat supplied by the Unicef.

"Earlier, my grandson couldn't attend classes regularly due to scarcity of dinghy boats, she said.

While visiting a school in the area, this correspondent found the students coming to schools spontaneously by shuttle boats. Some students were seen swimming as part of swimming training in the Kaptai Lake.

"I can swim now in the river and I am capable of crossing the lake quite confidently," said a beaming Biswajit Chakma, a student of playgroup at Boradom Primary School.

Chairman of Rangamati Hill District Council Nikhil Kumar Chakma said, "We have a plan to expand this project in other areas."
