KAMARUZZAMAN'S DEATH PENALTY

Gonojagoron Mancha celebrates with rupture

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The Shahbagh protesters waited with bated breath for the verdict from early morning. As hours ticked by and the morning turned to noon, they grew more and more anxious. "Did you hear anything?" they asked each other. The moment finally arrived, and an announcement from the Gonojagoron Mancha turned the protest into an event of celebration.

As soon as the news was out that Jamaat-e-Islami leader Muhammad Kamaruzzaman was sentenced to death for his crimes against humanity during the Liberation War, they burst into cheers and brought out a jubilant procession to celebrate the verdict.

"The judgment reflects the hopes and aspiration of the masses. I hope the verdicts to come next will not disappoint us," said Imran H Sarkar, spokesperson of the Mancha.

International Crimes Tribunal-2 yesterday sentenced Kamaruzzaman, assistant secretary general of Jamaat, to death as five out of seven charges brought against him were proved.

Around 2:00pm, several hundred people regardless of their age and sex joined the procession from Shahbagh and marched towards Central Shaheed Minar before returning to Shahbagh around 3:00pm. Passing motorists blew horns and gave thumbs-up signs in jubilation. In celebration, the youths hugged each other and threw flower petals in the air and distributed sweetmeats among people while waving the national flag. The entire Projonmo Chatter reverberated with the slogans "Joy Bangla", "Jonotar Joy Holo" (people triumphed).

On Monday, police dismantled the stage of the Shahbagh Gonojagoron Mancha where the movement to demand the capital punishment for war criminals started on February 5.

Polls manifesto partly fulfilled: Shafique

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Law Minister Shafique Ahmed yesterday said the government's election manifesto was partly fulfilled through the delivery of the war crimes trial judgement on Jamaat-e-Islami leader Muhammad Kamaruzzaman.

The manifesto was to try persons who committed crimes against humanity, including genocide, arson, rape, looting, forced conversion and forcing people to leave the country during the 1971 Liberation War, he said.

Shafique was expressing his reaction to journalists at his Bangladesh Secretariat office after the International Crimes Tribunal-2 awarded death penalty to Kamaruzzaman for committing the crimes in 1971.

He said the trials were being held transparently maintaining all required standards, which, at times, were better than those of other countries.

The accused were provided all opportunities to defend themselves through their choice of lawyers, to cross examine witnesses for adequate periods and to place arguments. Nobody was being tried on political consideration, he said.

Replying to a question, Shafique said the ministries of foreign and home affairs were working to bring war crimes convict Abul Kalam Azad, popularly known as Bachchu Razakar, back to the country.

State Minister for Law Qamrul Islam said anti-liberation forces would hatch conspiracies to stop the war crimes trial but they would not be able to do so.

CRACKDOWN ON HEFAJAT MEN Name thousands claimed to be killed

Inu calls upon opposition leaders

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Information Minister Hasanul Haq Inu yesterday asked the opposition leaders to provide a list, in 48 hours, of those thousands of people who they [leaders] claim to have been killed in law enforcers' action against Hefajat-e-Islam activists.

"Stop falsification and apologise to the nation if you cannot provide the list," Inu urged the BNP-led 18-party alliance leaders while briefing journalists at the Secretariat.

He said the death toll did not cross 30 as per reports of daily Inqilab and daily Naya Diganta but activists of BNP-Jamaat are spreading propaganda that thousands died.

Inu alleged that opposition leaders are spreading rumours to cause riots in the country.

However, the information minister could not give details of those who died and who were injured in the incident. "We are determining the casualties of the incident. We will disclose it soon," he said replying to a query.

Inu further said authorities of different madrasas will face the consequences of misguiding their children and using them in destructive activities in the capital.

Govt to rehouse Ctg hill residents during monsoon: DC

STAFF CORRESPONDENT, Ctg

The district administration will house people living in the hills of Chittagong city in plain land for the three months of the rainy season when the risk of landslides is very high.

Several hundred poor families will be evacuated to tents in the nearby open fields and schools, Deputy Commissioner (DC) Abdul Mannan said yesterday.

In this regard, a thirteen-member committee of representatives of relevant government agencies was formed at a meeting at the DC office yesterday.

The DC said the team would visit the risky hills and select the rehabilitation sites tomorrow. Tents will be installed within the next three days, he added.

Mannan said initially the administration would distribute around 150 tents, each with a capacity of housing a family of four. Three hundred more will arrive later, he added.

"After making the shelters, we will ask the families to evacuate the risky hills. If they did not comply, we would force them to move out," the DC said.

In the past, the authorities concerned only asked the families to evacuate but did not ensure alternative housing arrangement for them, so it did not work, he said.

Landslides in Chittagong hills killed 28 people last year. The death toll from the accident was 17 in 2011, 11 in 2008 and 127 in 2007.
