As a mayor of Rajshahi city, Khairuzzaman Liton did everything, in impressive manner, to get re-elected.

But the Awami League-backed candidate lost by a wide margin due to the anti-government sentiment, fuelled by a religion-based campaign and non-cooperation from his own party men.

His defeat proved how a performer can be rejected by his voters even after giving him credit for changing the entire look of Rajshahi city during his five-year term.

For the 18-party-backed Mosaddek Hossain Bulbul, it was a big win considering his position as a low-profile

Strong opposition from the Jamaat-e-Islami, internal feud, personal behaviour and poor response from migrated and minority voters are believed to be the reasons behind Awami League-backed candidate Talukder Abdul Khaleque's defeat in the Khulna City Corporation polls.

The participation of a leader of the Jatiya Party, a component of the AL-led grand alliance, in the election as a mayoral candidate also acted as a supplementary reason.

In addition to these, the use of the religion card by Islamist parties and organisations also contributed to his defeat.

As a mayor, Shakhawat Hossain Hiron made substantial contributions to the development of Barisal city. Still the Awami League-backed candidate has failed to secure a second term in office. The Daily Star identifies seven key reasons behind his defeat in Saturday's city corporation polls.

Winning the 2008 mayoral polls was no easy task; he narrowly defeated BNP-blessed Sharfuddin Shantu by a narrow margin of 588 votes. Since the 1980s, Barisal has been a BNP stronghold where the party enjoyed the support of around 60 percent voters most of the time.

A negative outlook for Awami League and some 'misdeeds' of Badar Uddin Ahmed Kamran and his men greatly contributed to his defeat in Saturday's polls.

Most of the voters of the Manipuri and Hindu communities expressed their no-confidence through the ballot as Kamran was not present beside them when BCL and Jubo League men grabbed some of their lands in the city.

KH Sanjay Kumar Singh, a Manipuri youth living at Kewapara, said some land grabbers, using the name of the BCL and Jubo League, grabbed land belonging to S Rina Devi, an elderly Manipuri leader.

WB to help build Padma indirectly

Country director tells of financing other priority projects

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The World Bank will indirectly help Bangladesh in constructing the Padma bridge though it has withdrawn its fund over an allegation of corruption conspiracy, as the project is very important for the economy.

"We will continue to help the government to get that project done if that is where it indicates its priorities to be," said Johannes Zutt, WB country director for Bangladesh and Nepal, at a media briefing on the assessment of the 2013-14 budget at his office in the capital.

"It does not necessarily mean direct financing. Indirectly, the WB financing can make a contribution because it is contributing to the overall financing of the development priorities of the government," he said.

Last year, the Washington-based lender cancelled a $1.2 billion funding for the largest ever infrastructure project in the
