Women labourers worked for road development at Nilkuthi village under Gazaria union in Phulchhari upazila of Gaibandha but were deprived of wages equal to their male counterparts.

Women still victims of wage discrimination

KM REZAUL HOQUE, Gaibandha

Women labourers in Phulchhari upazila under the district have to remain 'satisfied' with much lower wages than that of their male counterparts, thanks to the exploitative attitude of the employers.

Driven by poverty, a large number of women in remote char areas now work as labourers in the local crop fields to earn livelihood as male people often migrate to other places in search of seasonal work for higher wages, creating vacancy in the local labour market.

Many women are engaged as construction workers under the government's development programmes or NGO projects.

A good number of women also work in rice mills and hotels and restaurants in Fulchhari upazila.

In crop fields, a woman labourer gets Tk 100 as daily wage while a male gets Tk 150 for the same work, said Mariam Begum of Khatiyamari village in Phulchhari upazila.

A female rice mill worker gets Tk 110 against Tk 175 received by a male.

The women often remain silent over such disparity in fear of losing job, said Monwara Begum of Baushi village.

"Over 350 women labourers are working in 15 rice mills of the upazila. They remain deprived of fair wages. Besides, they often face sexual harassment by their male co-labourers," said Shafiullah Akand, director of Dristi Mohila Sangstha, an NGO working in Gazaria union of Phulchhari upazila.

The woman labourers should be paid equally, as they serve against adverse environment, said Monotosh Roy Mintu, chairman of Gazaria union.

"The women comprise a good portion of workforce in crop fields, rice mills and restaurants as many males leave home for a pretty long time in search of work elsewhere. These women should be paid fair wages," said Yousuf Rana Mandol, upazila agriculture officer of Phulchhari.

Torture in brutal manner

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Madaripur

A woman was tortured brutally on charge of stealing money in Mostafapur union of the district on Monday.

The victim was identified as Shahana Begum, 35, a tenant of one Abu Howlader of Zayar village and wife of Sagar Howlader.

Police and locals said Tk 10,000 was stolen from the house of Abu, a paralysed patient, on June 13.

To find out the thief, everyone at the house including Shahana was given chalpora (blessed rice) by Abu's nephew Ferdous Howlader on Sunday. Earlier, the rice was brought from a local religious person in the nearby village.

Abu's family accused Shahana of stealing the money when the rice in her mouth 'thickened' after chewing it.

The following morning, she was tied with the help of a chain to a tree at Abu's courtyard for the money. When her husband Sagar went to collect the money, Ferdous and other villagers beat up Shahana mercilessly.

On information, police rescued the victim from the spot and arrested Abu's wife Safia Begum and son Shohag Howlader, 30.

However, Ferdous managed to flee, sensing the presence of the law enforcers, said officer-in-charge Muhammad Moniruzzaman.

TENGRATILA GAS FIELD

Fear of disaster haunts locals as leaks are yet to be plugged

UNB, Sunamganj

Gas is coming out through leaks at several spots of Tengratila-Chhatak gas filed area in the district.

People of Tengratila and its adjacent areas live amid fear of a big accident any moment due to the gas leakage. The situation has become more serious as the villagers are using the gas for household purposes using 'local technology'.

While visiting the site early this month, local people told this correspondent that since the explosions in 2006, gas continued to come out through leaks at several points.

Recently, the level of gas emission through the leaks has marked an increase, they said.

In 2006, due to alleged mishandling of Canadian gas exploration company Niko, two explosions took place causing a huge fire incident in the Tengratila gas field.

The fire burnt gas worth several thousand crores of taka.

After the explosions, gas started coming out through the leaks in canals, beels

(water bodies) and farmland.

Later, though the main well was sealed off, it was not possible to fully plug the leaks.

Sudden surge in gas leakage recently has created fresh panic among the people around the gas field.

Many local people cover the leak with bowl and connect it to the kitchen stoves through pipe and use the gas for cooking.

At least 50 families are using the leaked gas through such dangerous method, which may cause fire or explosion any time, locals told this correspondent.

While visiting the house of one Abul Kashem, it was found that they set a gas connection from a canal through a plastic pipe and using it for cooking.

Kashem's wife was not aware about the risk. Rather she said that it was not an offence to use gas by their own technology.

This correspondent also found no security guard or technician to take care of the unprotected well of Tengratila gas field. Nor was there any initiative to plug the leaks.
