Promoting Child Rights

Promoting Child Rights

A taskforce formed under the Ministry of Law and Ministry of Social Welfare, with support from UNICEF, exists to making sure children do not end up in jails, and for deciding the fate of children serving time in the Child

Unlawful prosecution continues to haunt child offenders

Child Act 2013: A milestone for protection of vulnerable children

HE Child Bill 2013, passed on June 16, 2013 by the National Parliament, was published hrough a gazette notification on June

The new act is harmonised with the Inited Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) and has eferred to the CRC in the preamble and replaced the Child Act 1974. The Child Act 2013 is drafted by the Ministry of Social Welfare and consists of 11 chapters and 100 sections.

The act recognises an individual [aged 18 or below] as a child, providing a universal and internationally recognised definition for a child.

"The passing of the act is a great milestone for children in Bangladesh," UNICEF Bangladesh Representative ascal Villeneuve said in a statement The act has a provision for child victims and witnesses cementing legal instruments for their protection including compensation for victims Unicef formulated a framework of child-focused budget in partnership with the government and Policy Research nstitute of Bangladesh, a think tanl Finance Minister AMA Muhith at event recently said the governmen would consider a child-focused budget Child Help Desks in the police stafrom next fiscal year to ensure equita ble rights of children and spur inclu-For children in conflict with the law, the act reinforces the importan of diversion (alternative procedure and care) in the juvenile justice sys tem. There is provision for separate responsibilities to children. He said the police departmen tions and a designated skilled child

Welcoming the act, Inspector

General of Police Hassan Mahmood

Khandker told The Daily Star the ac would enhance police department's

It also includes the provision for according to the provisions of the act According to UNICEF's State of the World's Children 2010, the child population (under 18 years) in the country was 61.3 million. A report by National Taskforce on Releasing Children from Jail says, in November 2009, the number of children aged under 18 in adult jails were 205.

abusing and involving children in

The act has given preference on family based alternatives for children without parental care and other vul-

Establishment of Child Welfare Board is a key in building the system from the national to the district and community level that has been provided in the act.

Child Act 2013 at a glance • The new act abolishes the early Child Act 1974.

• The Child Act 2013 features 11

Different sentences including imprisonment and monetary penalty have been mentioned in the act for abusing and involving children in illegal activities.

chapters and 100 sections. The act recognises some organi tions and members and mentions about their responsibilities. Probation Officer: According to the act, the government will appoint one more Probation Officer/s in the distric upazila and metropolitan areas. Child Welfare Board: A National Child Welfare Board will be formed

The minster of the Ministry of Social Welfare will be the chairperson of the board. Boards at the district and upazila levels will also be formed District Commissioner and Upazila Nirbahi Officer (sub-district executive officer) will be the presidents of the boards respectively.

Child Help Desk: Under the Ministry of Home Affairs, Child Help Desks will be formed in police stations all over the country. An officer, ranked sub-inspector or above, will look after the desk. The act specifies responsibilities of the designated Charge Sheet: The act specifies about submitting charge sheet against children. According to the act, a single charge sheet consisting of adults and children cannot be submitted.

Juvenile Court: At least one juvenile court will be formed in district or met ropolitan area. If a case is filed against a child, whatever crimes s/he committed the juvenile court will try him/her. Arrest: According to the act, what ever the circumstance is, child aged below nine cannot be arrested. If a child above nine is being arrested, law enforcers cannot apply handcuffs and rope around waist to the child.

Sentence: Individual/s will be sentenced with maximum five- year imprisonment or a penalty of Tk five lakh or both, if a child is being abused Role of Media: Media is prohibited

Some children stay in jails with their convicted mothers and sometimes lost children to publish articles, photographs and are also sent to jail for safe custody, said information that go against a child Shabnaaz Zahereen, Child Protection

Specialist at UNICEF. English version of the act has not Despite repeated attempts to reach Inspector-General of Prisons, Brigadier Ashraful Islam Khan to comment on the num-

(BNWLA).

any of the calls made.

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

HOUGH many a thing have transformed or improved over ber of children inside the jail, he never picked abuse of the latter.

"Abuse is rampant," she claims.

Development Centres.

Enamul Hoque states that keeping inmates their mid-teens or late-teens together with children often results in bullying and sexual inside the juvenile centres, dubbed "Chile Development Centres" are deplorable, such that their aim of providing correctional devel opment to reinstate the children into society i

Former inspector-general of police Dr M

Director Zulfikar Haidar explains, "Educa-because the children come from many different educational backgrounds -- some have never been to school. We provide teachers qualified to teach up till eighth grade, but is case a child wants to study beyond that or wants to give a board exam we try to make an external arrangements. Vocational training is

Haider adds that they are going through a process to collaborate with Save the Children to improve the conditions of the Child

The newly amended law raises the bar of exemption from normal judicial processes to 18 years of age, from its previous age limit of Fahima Nasrin justifies that internationally an individual at 18 is considered prone to immature, careless or irresponsible behaviour However, a loophole in the system that does not mandate medical tests to be done by the police in the preliminary stage to determine the age of the arrestee, means that teen agers are often passed off as being over eighteen years of age, stated Director of BNWLA

Towhida Khondoker "If the judge has the discretion to be doubtful of the proclaimed age, only then does he give the directive to conduct a medical test to determine the age," added Towhida Both the previous law and the amended law require that a probation officer assist and advise the police in the correct handling of juvenile cases which decrees ensuring that the arrestee is not maltreated or abused and is given a fair trial.

Probation officers are also supposed to make sure the child is with his/her parents legal guardians throughout the judicial pro-

"Never have I seen a probation officer appears in any case. NGOs act in their replace ment," claimed Fahima.

She maintains that there are only 22 probation officers for handling all the juvenile crimes, although an ongoing process of appointing more is slowly on the way. Although the total number of juvenile cases currently pending or undergoing trial could not be found, Zulfikar Haidar claims that the trial of many of the 510 juvenile inmates within the three detainment centres in Tongi Konabari and Jessore are yet in a state of "Many of those children waiting for the hearing will cross 18 years of age because of the dawdling of the judicial system, and will then be prosecuted as adults for a crime they Corporal punishment in educational institutions missing in Child Act 2013 don't know, what is corporal punishment committed as a minor. This is against the law, said Fahima Nasrin.

While the 2013 directive restates the 1974 requirement that a fair trial for a minor entails ensuring an environment which does not make the detainee to be "made to feel like a criminal", but Fahima Nasrin says even the juvenile courts fails to "The trial is supposed to be held sans the regular courtroom setting. Even the attire worn by the judge, the lawyers and the police are meant to be casual. The language used to address the detainee is to be such that the child in no way feels that he or she is a criminal. Once they feel that they belong to difficult to correct them," she adds. The deputy commissioner (prosecution) of Dhaka claims that he had sometimes had to produce minors in adult courts as the same category as hardened criminals, it will affect their self-image and it will become

"There are only three juvenile courts fo all the cases, thus under certain circumstances this exception is made. We really must have more juvenile courts" he said.

A taskforce formed under the Ministry of Law and Ministry of Social Welfare, with support from UNICEF, exists to making sure children do not end up in jails, and for deciding the fate of children serving time in the Child Development Centres

A credit on their part has been in bring ing down the number of children in prisons from 1,200 in 2003, to less than a hun

"However, most of the children who get engaged in crime do so because they are deprived of their basic rights to education sustenance, guardianship and shelter, and the amended law is a reflection of the fact that many children are growing up victims to their social circumstances," said Fahima Nasrin.

If all children could be given a healthy environment to grow up in, juvenile crime would go down, she added

The Act is silent on banning children in politics

A LTHOUGH rampant use of children in violent political activities has become a common phenomenon in Bangladesh there is no particular provision in th recently passed Child Act-2013 prohibiting use of children in politics The section No. 79 of the act pro hibits use of children in carrying firearms or illegal materials or using them in violence or criminal activi-The perpetrator, who will use chil dren in these activities, will be punished with maximum three years of mprisonment or maximum Tk 1 lakh But no provision can be found regarding prohibition of children in political activities like using them in ity that may put children in hazard-During last few months, it was noticed that children were used as human shield keeping them in front of the procession or different violent processions, rallies or any other activ activities to avert police action. Moreover, many children died clashes between Jamaat-Shibir men and law enforcers.

For example, Asgar Ali Limon aged around 14 was killed in Chapainawabganj on April 24; Sazzad Hossain aged around 17 killed in Cox's Bazar and Rubel aged aroun 13 in Thakurgoan on February 28; Shahidul Islam aged around 15 at Satkania on March 2; Akmal Hossain aged around 14 in Rangpur on March

It is usually observed that children are used as human shield keeping them in front of the procession or different violent activities to avert police of child in politics.

However, Social Welfare Secretary

National Human Rights Commission (NHRC) Full Time Member Kazi Reazul Hoque said they proposed to incorporate a separate provision specifically prohibiting use

"But I do not know why the provision has been dropped from the act,"

Suraiya Begum said there is a provision in the act that prohibits using of children in any sorts of 'unethical' This provision will cover the area of using children in politics, she

Talking to The Daily Star, Shabnaaz Zahereen, Child Protection Specialist of UNICEF, Bangladesh, said there should be separate provisions specifically prohibiting use of children from politics to check abuse of them for political purpose.

children from prostitution cent of total children in the country are involved in different hazardous works.

"The confirmation that everyone under the age of 18 years is legally a child must stimulate action to ensure that existing laws on child labour and child marriage are strictly adhered to,

Different sentences including imprisonment and monetary penalty said Save the Children Country

Director Michael McGrath.

ZYMA ISLAM

"I escaped from there as soon as possible. The place was scary for a little girl -- rampant with drugs and physical and sexual abuse. I joined the little urchins on the street in selling flowers and ragpicking -- and on the streets, it becomes inevitable for a girl to become a sex worker. Hunger forces you to do t," described Hena.

"All of this happened when Ershad was the President," said Hena who could not tell in figures how many years ago that was, "but the scenario really has not changed. There are still plenty of children in this profession. Sometimes, the children get raped over and over, and finally join the profession, said Hena.

Although the children act clearly outlaws sex work below the age of 18, the victims think that no law will be able to keep children out of sex work until their basic rights are fulfilled.

and neither do these children," she said. Although the children act clearly out laws sex work below the age of 18, Hena laughed it off, saying that no law will be able to keep children out of sex work until their basic rights are given to them.

tive form of livelihood that pays more. Dr Mohammad Shahjahan, secretary general of Bureau of Human Rights Bangladesh, claims that while the streets are filled with floating "Although all the sex workers are the police verifying their age, no medical tests are required to substantiate their claims. Most of them do not have birth certificates either. All they need to do is bribe the police a little, and he would stamp the papers claiming that they are 18," said Shahjahan.

etrable network built on bribes between the brothel pimps and the local police, such the children remain beyond the scope of law. "When ordered by higher authorities to rescue the children, they often conpimps to clear out the underage sex workers," claimed Shahjahan. The different authorities of local a method of survival or as an alternadays," recounted Fahad.

supposed to obtain an affidavit from

He maintains that there is an impenhotels are also known to host such that kids in the streets enter sex work as activities, said Shahjahan across a child in conflict with the law, officer-in-charge of Kafrul police station Kazi Wazed Ali said, children are Like Fahad, another 15 years old boy named Smaran (not his real name) of Shajahanpur, said he was arrested from his home at the dead of the night last month. After receiving regular beatings at Shajahanpur police station he was sent to central jail where he spent 10 days with much older men.

Regarding child-friendly attitude, the police of Bangladesh are not wellinformed about their code of conduct.

Inspector Mostafa Kamal, Women and Children Repression Prevention Cell at the police headquarters, said that with help of UNICEF, home minis- law'.

try is conducting trainings in all discers, who are now imparting the training to others" said Kamal, who is conducting the training Child protection specialist of UNICEF, Shabnaaz Zahereen said that training on child friendly policing is mechanism and monitoring' project o the Ministry of Home Affairs.. "The training module has been

However, much work lies ahead to law. One such task, stipulated in

PANKAJ KARMAKAR

▼ A 7 ITH incidents of corporal /// punishment on children V V recurring across the country, the government has incorporated a new provision prohibiting any sort of physical tort on children in the Child Act-2013. But the act does not have any particular provision prohibiting corporal punishment in educational The section No. 70 of the act prohibited hit, abuse, torture or negligence to children for preventing physical harm. If any person commits the 'offence', s/he will be awarded up to five years imprison ment or Tk 1 lakh fine or both, according to the provision.

National Human Rights Commission (NHRC) Full Time Member Kazi Reazul Hogue said while drafting the act, they propose to incorporate a separate provision particularly prohibiting corporal punishment in education institu-

But the provision has been missed finally for unknown reason, he

Social Welfare Secretary Suraiya Begum, however, said there is sepa rate policy of Education Ministry and vigorous campaigns of rights activists and media, incidents of punishment include -- at least 60 children injured in caning at a priat Joypurhat on May 2. The Education Ministry on August 2010 issued a circular prohibiting all sorts of corporal punishment on students. On April, 2011 the ministry issued another circular saying that it has formulated a policy to end corporal punishment.

hand of child was broken by teacher

Besides, the Directorate of Secondary and Higher Education (DSHE) has already developed a manual to train and sensitise school teachers on the issue. But the training is yet to start, as the ministry has not printed the copy Talking to The Daily Star, Shabnaaz Zahereen, Child Protection Specialist of UNICEF, Bangladesh, said, "The government is formulating rules to implement the act. In those rules, a particular provision may be incorporated prohibiting corporal punishment in educational institu-

Laws till date failed to protect

have been a sex worker since the age of seven, said Hena, current secretary-general of Durjoy Nari Sangha, an advocacy group of sexworkers struggling to establish rights for those in this profession. "After my parents died, I was left napless. A neighbour brought me to Dhaka luring me with the promise of a job but sold me to a brothel instead." A few years down the line, Hena was picked up from the streets by the police while out about on her business, and transferred to a vagrant centre in

> "I never understood the kinds of diseases I was getting exposed to as a result

Joya Sikder, president of the Sex

Workers Network of Bangladesh stated underaged sex workers, legalized brothels are equally responsible for hosting duct dummy raids, having first told the the last four decades, the juvenever handcuffed or kept in the cusnile justice system of Bangladesh fel tody area in police station. little of the wind of change. Children Explaining the current system, offiwho have had the misfortune of being cer-in-charge of Kafrul police station in police custody still remain trauma Kazi Wazed Ali said, "When we come across a child in conflict with the law "I still have nightmares about the we inform the probation officer of police sub-inspector who made me pee social welfare officer." But the reality in an electrified bucket for two days is that sights of juveniles being said Fahad (not his real name), a car handcuffed in the custody area of mechanic of a Shajahanpur garage. police stations are too common in the Law enforcers largely unaware about child-friendly policing

Fahad was arrested for suspected arms hauling in 2008 when he was 14. He was acquitted of the charge after three years of appearing before the court for hearing of his case. But by then he was deeply traumatised for life by the experience of being in police remand for five days.

N 1999, 15-year-old Roushan Mondal was handed down a death sentence for alleg-

In 2008, eight year old Arifa was locked up in Khulna district jail on the charge of having

In 2010, two boys and a girl aged 14, nine and seven respectively, were caught in Bhairab having three kilograms of cannabis taped to their bodies, and while the boys were kept in

In August 2010, a memo released by the were enclosed within 67 jails in the country -- a clear defiance of the Children Act of 1974, which states that children cannot be kept in orison with adults under any circumstances.

the same, only to encounter blank faces that cannot tell exactly how many children are in prison right now -- that is -- how many children are currently going through unlawful

"The number stood at 64 last year, but no being treated as adults," said Advocate Fahima recent statistics exist, which means that we do not know how many children are currently

Nasrin, former vice-president of Bangladesh

Fahima asserts that even the conditions

National Women Lawyer's Association

The 2013 amendment of the act reiterates prison directorate stated that 145 children the juvenile ward, the girl had been locked up 20 phensidyl bottles strapped to her body which she was attempting to ferry from Satkhira to Khulna.

edly raping and strangling an eight year

"During the first two days, four policemen took turns to torture me. The first pinched and pulled my fingers with pliers. But then my parents gave the policemen about Tk 25,000 and they didn't touch me for the next three

However, asked to comment on

"Starting the project in 2010, initially UNICEF trained 200 police offibeing conducted under 'Anti-trafficking prepared in the purview of CRC, taking the new law into account, as we were involved in the drafting process of the new law (Children Act 2013)," she said. implement the provisions of the new children's desk under a police officer, preferably a women, of at least subinspector rank, at every police station. Inspector General of Police Hassan Mahmood Khandker, said that the department will request for more human resource if required, 'but that will not stop implementation of the Chapter-4 of the law, is forming a Police generally claim that children are handcuffed or kept in the custody area in police station But sights of juveniles being kept in the custody area of police stations are too common in the prohibiting corporal punishment in educational institutions. "That is why, we have not incorporated the provision in the child act,"

Despite government's instructions corporal punishment on children are recurring at different educational institutions across the country.

Some recent examples of corporal mary school in Sirajganj on June 10, a child was tortured by teachers at a madrasa at Jamalpur on June 16 and

In partnership with unite for children