

Nat'l grid to get 1,100MW by Dec

State minister for power tells JS

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

With a new power plant and imported power, around 1,100 megawatt (MW) of electricity will be added to the national grid by December this year, State Minister for Power Muhammad Enamul Huq told parliament.

Of the 1,100MW, 500MW power will be imported from India while the rest will be generated from the newly set up power plants, he said replying to a scripted question from Sadhana Halder MP.

"By that time, the power generation would increase to 10,000MW," he added.

The minister said the current power generation capacity has reached to 9,059MW which was 4,583MW at the end of the tenure of BNP-led four-party alliance government.

He informed that at present the highest demand of electricity in the country is 7,000MW while the average power generation is 6,200-6,700MW.

"The highest power generation increased to 6,675 megawatt till July this year while it was 4,130 megawatt in 2008," Enamul said.

He said a total of 57 power plants have so far been commissioned with total production capacity of 4,432MW.

State Minister for Home Shamsul Haque spoke on behalf of Enamul Huq.

He said the government reduced to power outage at tolerable level from the previous BNP-Jamaat government.

"People used to suffer between 12 and 16 hours power outage a day during the BNP-Jamaat regime while there is no power outage more than one and half hours a day," he said responding to a supplementary question.

A number of ruling party MPs demanded immediate end of the expansion work of electricity line of Rural Electrification Board.

In reply, Enamul Huq said around 10,190 kilometres of line has already been set up in 2012-2013 fiscal year in the areas of 276 lawmakers and around 18,000 kilometres of power line would be set up in this fiscal year.

"Around 34 lakh new power connections have been given during the period of this present government," he said.

He said around 2.83 lakh illegal power connections across the country were snapped.

charges saying that his client is innocent.

According to the prosecution, the accused, also known as Khokon Razakar, was a local leader of the Razakar, auxiliary force of the Pakistani army in Faridpur during the war.

He was involved in at least 13 incidents of war crimes, which left at least 50 people dead, eight others seriously injured and two women raped.

Meanwhile, for the third day defence counsel for war crimes accused Abdul Alim continued placing argument at the Tribunal-2.

Ahsanul Huq Hena placed argument on three charges.

The tribunal-2 adjourned the proceeding until today.

The court also recorded the testimony of Ataur Rahman, the 25th and last prosecution witness in the case against alleged Al-Badr leaders Chowdhury Mueen Uddin and Ashrafuzzaman Khan.

Expressing contentment after getting an offer to work for children, Shakib said it was necessary to stand beside street children as they cannot get access to education due to their parents' poverty.

"We need to start working for the street children. I want those children to be more famous players than us, and even journalists and national leaders," Shakib said.

"There are many talents among our underprivileged children who do not get any nutrition and education," said Jewel Aich.

Moushumi said it was embarrassing that the society does not show due respect to the children especially the female children although women contribute in different fields.

"We all must be sympathetic and reverential to children and women. If we can do this, our country will move forward," she mentioned.

Unicef claims an estimated 17 million children are living under the poverty threshold in Bangladesh.

Unicef Bangladesh Representative Pascal Villeneuve also spoke.

Pay commission for teachers

He added that 90 per cent of Bangladesh's education is administered by non-government schools and colleges. "The discriminatory policies that are being followed must be abandoned now," he said.

Rashed Khan Menon, chairman of the Parliamentary Standing Committee for the Ministry of Education, said, "Before the tenure of the government expires, we must try to implement the independent pay commission for teachers."

"Spending money in education is the best possible investment," he added.
