Prophets of Politics

CHINTITO

Owing to the longstanding (now boring) standoff between politicians, leading to anxiety, suffering and educational & economic & social losses among the mass, also known as voters, remotely these days as 'people', there is a growing wholesale abhorrence against politicians and their profession (it has come to that) even if the fault lies with one group or the other.

Also, this criticism of BOTH parties and sometimes their leaders, seldom the two alliances of largely signboard entities, is a novel way to show one's neutrality, which one is definitely not. Usually, when one know that one's supported party/leader/alliance is at fault, that person conveniently switches to the 'neutral' mode because one is then defenceless. So, in these trying days and nights, if you come across more people towing the neutral line, you can be sure that they have discovered that one of the parties/leaders/alliances is now more at fault.

Fidel Castro with Nikita Khrushchev.

The wrong doings however do not stop the 'spoons' (English for chamoch), often disguised as talk show guests, to keep on supporting their party/leader/alliance of belief, and faith is always blind. The talk shows continue to fill up air time with misinformation (politer way of saying 'lies') by ill-educated knowledge sinners, dubbed sarcastically as intellectuals by again the mass, the voters, and the 'source' of all power; whatever it may mean in political jingo, in the real world 'source' translates into 'informer'. Several of them are killed each year by the wielders of power.

Those of you interested to continue to be entertained by jugglery of words, twisting of sentences, and misusing of facts at such shows, where nowadays some hosts are also rolling the neutral ball, this is a request from those of us who are 'retired hurt' to make a hard list of the predictions and commitments of these talk showman/woman and catch them by the scruff of their neck in the coming months when they will fail in their commitment/s and/or their predictions shall fail.

These prophets of politics, including some politicians, after their exposure, should be banned first from televised talk shows and then from politics for three years and finally from seeking public office for five years. That may, just may, deter them from vomiting in full public view late each evening all that they do not digest.

Another improvement could actually be initiated by the TV channels, which should not invite a guest more than once in three months. In that way the guest would lose his/her status as an 'intellectual', whatever that means.

Television channels, present and future, yes there are several in the gutter line, should record, transcribe and publish every word that their guests utter, so that in the court of law it can be shown as evidence when indeed they file a lawsuit for not being called thrice every week.

A good friend emailed me some quotations on 'politics' and the people involved in it that may
