voicebox

"We did note that we were disappointed by the recent parliamentary elections, especially because so many of the seats were uncontested or only had token opposition."

MARIE HARF
Deputy spokesperson of the US Department of State
Said while replying to queries on the current situation in Bangladesh at a press briefing in Washington DC

"Hopes for formation of a third front are an illusion. It can never happen. Similar experiments in the past have failed miserably. Even if the third front is formed, nobody knows who will be its leader."

CHANDAN MITRA
A senior BJP leader
Said that no third party would be able to play any significant role and BJP would dethrone "scam tainted" Congress government at the Centre in 2014 election

"I don't think that there can be any complaints over the polls."

SHEIKH HASINA
Prime Minister of Bangladesh
Said in the post polls press meet

"I can't stop them, I am tired."

A POLLING OFFICER of Dhaka-18 constituency
As hordes of children were gathered by the ruling party workers to vote for their candidate

"We will help Iraq but won't send troops."

JOHN KERRY
US Secretary of State
Speaking to reporters in Jerusalem on Sunday that United States will help the Iraqi government in its battle against al Qaeda-linked fighters in western Iraq, but stressed it won't send troops

"If there is any original vote there has to be fake ones. How do you think there won't be any fake vote amidst original ones? The election has taken place and that's what is important."

SURANJIT SENGUPTA
Awami League Leader
While addressing a programme organized by Bangabandhu Academy at Institute of Diploma Engineers in Dhaka