

The Life and Practice of Lalon Shadhok

Many shadhoks (devotees) scattered throughout Kushtia, as well as in rural areas all over the country, have been practicing the philosophy of life and music of Lalon. This story explores the practice of Lalon's philosophy in the everyday life of the devotees and tries to capture the phenomenal role of the Baul shadhoks in carrying out the subaltern intellectual/cultural praxis of our nation.

Nandi Gram

Nandi gram is a village at West Bengal in India. This place has become very much important for West Bengal politics. In 2007 West Bengal governments plan was to expropriate 10,000 acres of land in Nandi gram for a special economic zone (SEZ) to be developed by the Indonesian-based Salim Group for the industrialization. In 2007, the people of Nandi gram protested this process and police attacked on them and killed many villagers and activists. But in the end, the people of Nandi Gram saved their land.
