An official of the fair's organiser, Bangla Academy, the premises of which is housing the fair's other portion, said the preparation delay was for security requirements of the inauguration ceremony attended by the prime minister.

The official said it usually takes a day or two to put everything into order.

Regarding the empty spaces, Bangla Academy Deputy Director (Public Relations) Murshid Anwar said, "Those will be used to set up necessary booths like an information centre and a control room.

He also said the stalls could not be provided serial numbers yet as there were some changes and reviews regarding the allot-Meanwhile, hawkers were found selling pirated books of Indian writers and books on cartoon characters and other subjects on the pavement before Bangla Academy, stretching from the Doyel Chattar intersection to Dhaka University's Teacher-Student Centre. Murshid said they would inform law enforcers to take steps.

Traffic on the road along this stretch of pavement was made offlimits to vehicles from 3:00pm to 9:00pm yesterday. Sergeant Faruk Hasan of Dhaka Metropolitan Police Traffic Division said the decision was taken yesterday to reduce public hazards and will remain effective on weekdays. He, however, could not inform on measures for Friday. Another event, the two-day National Poetry Festival 2014 in Hakim Chattar, beside the DU central library, ended yesterday around 8:30pm with songs adapted from poems. Earlier, two discussion sessions were held from 11:00am. The festival saw over 550 poets, including those of Bangladesh's indigenous communities and from Europe, whose rendition of poems started from 1:00pm in different languages, including Bangla and Ahomia and Kakaborok, used in India. This year Kobita Parishad presented poet Mohammad Rafique, a faculty member of Jahangirnagar University, with a prize worth Tk 1 lakh.
