Tamralipi is one of the most popular publication houses in the country with books for students, children and young adults. Besides novels, a number of books are available for aspirants to the Math Olympiad competition.

Tamralipi has published around 12 books penned by famed author Muhammad Zafar Iqbal. Under its production, two of his books "Padartha Bigganer Prothom Path" and "Bappar Bandhu" are available at this year's Ekushey Book Fair.

For this year, Tamralipi has published 60 books, including "Shimar Majhe Ashim Tumi" penned by Justice Mohammad Habibur Rahman; "Ekti Shonamoni" by litterateur Selina Hoassain; "Chhobi Soboi Tomar" by Hayat Mahmud; novel "Bhalo Laga Ebong Bahlobashar Golpo" by Anisul Haque; "Media Bichitra" by Muhammad Jahangir and "Bhuter Magic" by Rakib Hasan.

Tamralipi has published 300 books so far. It embarked on its journey with the publication of books on Mathematics and Science. It also published several books on Bangladesh Math Olympiad.

"Students have picked up many books published by Tamralipi. While mathematics was a tough subject for them earlier, thanks to the books they now enjoy the subject", said Tamralipi's publisher AKM Tariqul Islam Roni.

The publisher is optimistic about the Boimela as it is an event where a large number of readers and writers can freely mingle. He was also happy that the larger part of the fair is located at Suhrawardy Uddyan this year.

Likewise he is pleased at the soaring sales of books at the fair. Besides other writers, the sale of Zafar Iqbal's book has increased this year, he said. He wished the fair every success.

What Does Music Look Like?

"Sonic" is the latest project by German photographer Martin Klimas. Paint is put on top of a speaker and then music is played at full volume -- creating explosions of colour. Klimas chooses percussive music from a range of genres, including jazz, classical, rock and dance. The camera captures the bubbling paint using very fast shutter speeds. "So many artists have worked with music but I never saw work that answered my main question: 'What does music look like itself?" Klimas said in a 2012 interview. The project allows the viewer to compare the 'look' of different pieces of music. The vivid, action-packed photographs have been likened by some critics to the pioneering work of high-speed photography legend Harold Edgerton. "Sonic" opened this week at the Foley Gallery in New York and will run until November 3.
