VIOLATING RAJUK'S PLOT ALLOTMENT RULES ACC launches probe against expatriates' welfare secretary

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Anti-Corruption Commission (ACC) has launched a probe against Khondaker Showkat Hossain, former secretary to the Ministry of Housing and Public Works, for taking allotment of three Rajdhani Unnayan Karttripakkha (Rajuk) plots violating Rajuk rules.

Khondaker, now secretary to the Ministry of Expatriates' Welfare and Overseas Employment, took the plots for himself and his wife and mother between 2000 and 2005 in the capital's Purbachal and Uttara projects, said a top ACC official.

According to Rajuk rules, a husband and his wife cannot own separate plots in the projects, said the official. The plots were offered to the public and under around 12 categories of quotas at subsidised prices.

ACC Deputy Director Jatan Kumar Roy was appointed early February to probe the allegation, he said, adding, "We wrote to the Rajuk authorities to provide all necessary documents regarding the plots."

Khondaker told The Daily Star yesterday that he took allotment of the Uttara plot in 2000 and his wife Aysha Begum the Purbachal plot in 2005 "maintaining conditions in the Rajuk advertisement issued for the concern plots".

PUDDLES, RAINWATER PESTER SUHRAWARDY UDYAN SELLERS

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Although the spring sun started shining bright from the morning, book stalls at the Suhrawardy Udyan portion of Amar Ekushey Granthamela 2014 yesterday were trying to recover from the aftermath of the continuous drizzle since Saturday evening.

The brick path from the entrance ended at the security arch some feet away. The Daily Star, on a visit around 3:30pm, found visitors desperately trying to make their way across the maze of numerous murky puddles to reach the stalls.

Moreover, most stalls in the middle rows were found dealing with water seeping through the tarpaulin and particle board roof the Bangla Academy provided.

For this, nearly half of the books on display in Student Ways stall had to be shifted elsewhere. "Bangla Academy should have provided staff to drain out the water on the roof," said Miron Mitra, a salesperson there.

Shams Shuvro, owner of Pathak Shamabesh, was supervising workers sweeping the stall's wet floor. "Instead of helping, the academy officials announced yesterday (Sunday) that we have to take care of this problem ourselves," he said.

He said he had to even bring electricians to fix the wiring to avoid short circuits. Salespersons in many stalls also complained that they could not switch on lights on Sunday evening in fear of a short circuit.

Yesterday, 58 new books arrived while publication ceremonies of 10 were held in the fair in the capital.
