Law enforcers getting into criminal acts

NHRC boss Mizanur Rahman says after visiting two Jessore men allegedly shot by police

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Visiting two people, allegedly shot in the leg by police, at a hospital in the capital, National Human Rights Commission Chairman Prof Mizanur Rahman yesterday alleged that law enforcers were increasingly getting involved in criminal activities.

"They [law enforcers] are running a 'business of detention' and extorting general people. They are even shooting people if they refuse to pay," he told reporters, after talking to the two men at the National Institute of Traumatology and Orthopedic Rehabilitation (Nitor).

The two from Jessore town are locally known as criminals. Salman Sikder Biki, 25, who claimed to be a seller of vehicle spare parts, and Masudur Rahman Nannu, 38, who called himself a fruit seller, said they were shot in their left legs by Kotwali police of Jessore on June 15 and May 31 respectively.

The NHRC chief said police could not do this even to criminals. The two incidents are a clear evidence of law enforcers' increasing involvement in criminal acts, he added.

Doctors at Nitor advised amputation of Biki's leg. Nannu, however, narrowly escaped losing his leg.

Biki told the NHRC chief that a police team led by Sub-inspector Soyeb Uddin picked him up from his residence at Pujor Hat and took him to Chachra police outpost. They demanded Tk 10 lakh from his parents. As they refused, they fired at his left leg point blank after taking him to the nearby Dalmil graveyard area.

A prosecution witness yesterday testified that the Pakistani army killed 11 people, including his brother, after Jamaat-e-Islami leader Abdus Subhan, along with the army, took them away from their village in Pabna during the liberation war.

Akkas Sheikh, brother of one victim, Utken Sheikh of Pabna Sadar, told the International Crimes Tribunal-2 that he saw the Pakistani army killing one of the 11 following Subhan's order.

Akkas, the 16th prosecution witness in Subhan's case, vividly described how Subhan and the occupation army picked up the people, and Subhan's associates sorted out Awami League supporters before they were killed.

Subhan faces nine charges over crimes, including genocide, committed in Pabna in 1971. He, however, pleaded not guilty before court.

Akkas, during his 38-minute testimony, said on the morning of the fifth of Bangla month Jaistha, the Pakistani army, accompanied by Subhan, besieged their Bharara village.

"Moulana Subhan, along with the military men, picked up people from different homes of the village and took them in front of the Bharara Masjid," said Akkas. "Moulana Subhan took away my brother Utken Sheikh from our home before my eyes to the mosque."

Akkas also went to the mosque following his brother and found his maternal grandfather Khedan Sheikh, maternal uncle Kader Sheikh along with other detainees, said the 65-year-old witness.

On the mosque premises, Subhan read out the names of some detainees from a list and Subhan's cohorts separated them, the witness said.

"The name of Majid [Sheikh] was called thrice and he responded. Then Moulana Subhan ordered the Pakistani army to kill him and the troops shot him dead on the spot."
