My uncle was killed after Subhan picked him up

Man testifies at war crimes trial; tribunal adjourns David Bergman's contempt proceedings till Aug 21

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A prosecution witness yesterday testified that his paternal uncle was shot dead after Jamaat-e-Islami leader Abdus Subhan and other Razakars took him away from their neighbouring village in Pabna during the Liberation War in 1971.

Nizamuddin Khan, nephew of martyred Kaifuddin Khan of Tatipara in Pabna Sadar, said he had seen Subhan at the place where his uncle was killed apparently for helping freedom fighters.

There was a Razakar camp in the neighbouring Dublia, a Hindu dominated village, and Subhan often visited the camp during the war, the 19th prosecution in Subhan's case told the International Crimes Tribunal-2.

Nizam, 61, said Razakars used to torture Hindus in the camp at Dublia Bazar and pile valuables looted from them there. He said his uncle Kaifuddin, who was an ex-army officer, had been trying to save Hindus from Razakars and used to help freedom fighters.

Politics, admin crime infested

NHRC chief tells seminar on safe waterways that reveals 9,537 people were killed in accidents in last 39 years while 800 recommendations went unheeded

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The country's politics, economy and administration have been infested with crimes due to absence of the rule of law, National Human Rights Commission Chairman Mizanur Rahman said yesterday.

"We didn't let the rule of law be established. Laws could not run their own courses. Laws were chained often to politics, money and personal vanities. If the rule of law cannot be established, it's not possible to do anything for the people's wellbeing," he said.

What can people expect of a society where an administration official intends to protect self-interests ignoring public interests? he said, addressing a seminar, "Accident-free waterways, strict enforcement of laws and our recommendations", organised by the Safe Water Way Movement at the capital's Jatiya Press Club.

The rights body chief observed that people of different professions were engaged in blame games, but if the rule of law was to be established, everyone would have to perform their own duty instead of criticising others.

About communication and transportation, Rahman said it was the state's duty to ensure safe movement of people. He said he would send recommendations to the shipping ministry and other authorities for ensuring passengers' safety ahead of Eid-ul-Fitr.

Presenting the keynote paper, Safe Water Way Movement member secretary Aminur Rasul Babul said at least 9,537 people were killed in launch accidents across the country in the last 39 years. Over this period, the probe bodies formed after the accidents placed over 800 recommendations to check the accidents, but the government is yet to implement these, he said.
