Celebrating 110TH ANNIVERSARY OF MCCI

Regulatory Commission, alternative dispute resolution, VAT

The socially responsible views often help the business community and the government find a common path of fulfilment.

And in the process, MCCI sealed its reputation as the most effective channel of communication

The chamber has been always a non-political organisation, but it made an exception in 1971. It covertly offered whole-hearted support for the cause of inde-pendence, and on the night of March 26, 1971, it hoisted the flag of Bangladesh at the rooftop

It donated food and money to the freedom fighters during the country's nine-month struggle and supported the formation of the new government.

government with the ing in policymaking.

The chamber's role became much more important after independence. It helped the privatisation process through leading role in trade policy formulation, facilitates trade and investment, assists in busi research and actively participat-

Today, the MCCI performs a community and the govern-and customs and financial reporting acts.

of its office.

MCCI: The voice of responsible business

STAR BUSINESS REPORT

t was in 1904, when the region was going through an industrial growth spurt, that the seed of the Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce and Industry was Known as the Narayanganj Chamber of Commerce, it was established by the European entrepreneurs of Narayanganj and Dhaka with the sole aim of championing trade and commerce in the East Bengal and Assam province. The chamber, first of its kind in the region, was utilised mainly by British businessmen to facilitate jute

Its membership demographic changed with the withdrawal of the East India Company from the subcontinent, as more local businesspeople started to coalesce around the chamber.

In 1950, the chamber was renamed as the Dhaka-Narayanganj Chamber of Commerce, and for the next two years, its extensive work led to an increase in exports of jute.

In order to deal with the increasing tempo of industrialis ation in the eastern part of the Indian subcontinent, the chamber realised that it should be authorised by the constitution to deal with industrial as well as commercial matters. Subsequently in 1952, it was renamed the Dhaka-Narayanganj Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

The chamber segued to its current form in 1979, a platform to influence decision-makers and ensure the best possible environment for trade and con merce for its members and the nation at large. "We have since gone from Afzal Rahman, president of the MCCI, on the occasion of the chamber's 110th anniversary.

Today, it is poised not only to proactively assist its members, who are more than 300, in their strength to strength," said Rokia business dealings but also to contribute positively to the MCCI's member companies, hailing from all sectors and representing most of the large enterprises in Bangladesh, including multinationals, have created hundreds of thousands of job opportunities for the

The chamber is represented in between the country's business 16 advisory committees of the government, ranging from exports and consultative committees of industries, commerce, communications, jute, textiles, power ministries, Chittagons port, Customs House, the National Board of Revenue, Bangladesh Standards and Testing Institution and Bangladesh Securities and

Also a former caretaker government adviser, Rahman said Going forward, MCCI will continue to play a leading role in influencing the social, economic and business environment of Bangladesh in order to generate sustainable economic objective approach to socioeconomic issues, which succes-progress

sive governments appreciated. Its suggestions and recommendations were given much weight by all governments, and in recent years, they were included in the Companies Act, Bankruptcy Act, Consumer Protection Act, industrial policy, pre-shipment inspection, form tion of Bangladesh Energy

The MCCI contributed to the establishment of sectors such as education, health and environment as well. It became a member of the International Chamber of Commerce in 1984 and since then, has forged new links. It signs protocols and memorandum of understandings with foreign chambers for promoting international trade. It also plays a vital role in areas of bilateral relationships, diplomatic negotiations and representation of Bangladesh in the outside world. The MCCI also has great interests in social and humani tarian causes -- and just about anything that enhances the wellbeing of people in Bangladesh It played key roles in setting

Rokia Afzal Rahman

Narayangani, Vigarunnisa Noon

School in Dhaka, Udayan

School, Chittagong Public

School and the Institute of Business Administration of extended financial assistance towards the development of Holy Family Red Crescent

Hospital and Dhaka Shishu ment programme with the World Bank in 2000 and introduced an award to honour en part in the clean river campaigr

"The MCCI has been playing a leading role primarily to help in the economic progress of the country. But it is aware that such comprehensive and sustainable initiatives elsewhere and these involve making contributions the nation on social and ronment heroes. It also took launched by The Daily Star.

progress depends on taking

Narayanganj Victoria Hospital

On the environment front, it

In the health sector, it had ness start-ups, settles trade disputes, issues certificates mandatory for business, encourages members to carry out corporate social responsibility activities up Tolaram Women College in humanitarian grounds," Rahman said.

The chamber's motive is to promote inclusive and responsi-ble business always, she said. "It means we will not only look at making profit, but also look at building the nation."

For the last one decade, the MCCI has been trying to disseminate the philosophy of corpo-rate social responsibility in a much more systemic and comprehensive manner than ever promoted environment manage- before Going forward, the country's oldest and most representative trade chamber is bent on continuing to play a leading role in the business affairs and in pioneering paths to prosperity and development in alliance with governmental and non-governmental agencies. "We will continue to play a leading role in influencing the social, economic and business lished the tradition," he said, adding environment of Bangladesh in order to generate sustainable any political pressure. "But we have so economic progress."

Focus on business, not politics

MD FAZLUR RAHMAN

iding the political gravy train has unfortunately become a short cut to success for many. But for the Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Dhaka, that was out of the question.

The 110-year-old trade organisation has successfully been able to distance itself from politics and it is all down to its leaders' commitment to delivering what they are mandated to do, which is to promote business at home and "The chamber has kept itself away from politics by choice and conscience. It has never allowed political differences of its board members to come to disrupt its activities," said Latifur Rahman, a former president of MCCI. Rahman, who is also the chairman and chief executive officer of Transcom Group, was elected for seven terms to become the longest serving president of MCCI. He led the organisation in 1993, 1994, 2000, 2001, 2006, 2007 and

"We don't get involved in politics because it is not our cup of tea. We, as MCCI has kept itself away from politics by choice and conscience. It has never allowed political differences of its board members to come to disrupt its activities. We, as leaders of the MCCI, only work to promote trade and industries > leaders of the MCCI, only work to promote trade and industries." "Leadership at the MCCI changes but its course remains the same -- this is the uniqueness of the chamber. The former leaders of the MCCI have estab-person for outstanding accomplish far successfully managed to do it as its top leaders have always absorbed the

The chamber, however, always hurt businesses in particular and the

It has a close consultative relationas export and import and also in case of budget. During consultations with bigger picture of the economy into consideration.

"We always work for the betterment of trade and commerce and the whole economy and never take the narrow view," said Rahman, who in 2012 won the Oslo Business for Peace Award, the highest distinction given to a businesscapital and gave the chamber today's ments in the area of ethical business. The MCCI has never had to deal He also touched upon the issue of with any legal procedures over elections in its long history, a rarity for chambers

This feature has made the chamber exceptional in Bangladesh, where polls are fraught with legal cases or court contending parties or candidates. "I must give this credit to the men the late sixties.

to listen to the board members first an agreed decision.

This inclusive participation of the board members in decision-making makes the chamber unique, Rahman when discussing an issue and then take

He also praised the chamber's research capacity, which, he says, has been the MCCI's strength. Its reports are objective and frequently quoted. "Governments looked at the MCCI for right inputs, not coloured ones. We are happy that we have been able to paint the real picture." Rahman also recalled the activities of which the chamber supported in every He said there is a sea-change in the the MCCI after the Liberation War, size and activities of the economy between now and then.

"We were a nascent and small organisation at that time. Our economy was also a tiny little drop in the ocean and businesses were completely different with the economy was socialist to large extent. Now, the size, scale and opportunities have grown tremen-

He went on to recommend address ing the problems of traffic jams and inadequate infrastructure to help the economy tap its true potential. Rahman's words of advice for the future members and leaders of the MCCI are very basic: they should do what they are supposed to do for the sake of businesses and industries, while taking into account the whole econ-same time, they also need to forge a harmonious relationship with their

He said if the workers and employees are given wages and benefits that allow them to live a decent life with their families, the well-being would

"Then it will be the biggest contribution to the society from the businesses

A pioneer in setting standards

REFAYET ULLAH MIRDHA

been enjoying a zero-duty benefit for exports of all products, except 25 alcohol and drug items, to the Indian ma ket since November 2012 The process of negotiations for such a benefit began in 2002. Following intense negotiations between the two neighbours, the Indian government first started reducing the number of products on the sensitive list for which the duty will be cut. Then it agreed to introduce a quota system for exports of garment items from Bangladesh "I still remember how intensely we, from the MCCI, negotiated with the Indian government and business community to reduce the sensitive list," said Tapan Chowdhury, a former presi dent of Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce and Industry (MCCI) and managing director of Square Pharmaceuticals Ltd.

Square Pharmaceuticals is a sister concern of industrial conglomerate Square Group. "The MCCI cooperated Chowdhury was elected president of the influential chamber twice, once in 2002 and for the second time in 2003. Becoming a member of the MCCI is difficult than in other trade bodies, as the chamber always tries to include quality companies and businesspeople, he said. "We encourage credible companies and persons for membership at has more than 300 members. This number tells a story of exclusivity in member selection, he said. The MCCI tries to remain focused on the subject stories to share in helping the government in policy formulation and developing business standards in Bangladesh. MCCI members have negotiated with the government to improve the supply of gas and power its neutrality and played a vital role by

In a journey of 110 years, the MCCI is not politically affiliated and it always The chamber has several success to industrial plants, he added. In its journey, the MCCI could prove

Tapan Chowdhury

helping the government in policy formulation and developing business standards in Bangladesh > with the Bangladesh government during negotiations with India," The Daily Star.

Similarly, the MCCI was always against the option to allow whitening of black money in the economy and also opposed the culture of bank loan defaults, as ultimately, depositors lose

These are some small examples where the MCCI cooperated with the government to reach a decision. There are several other examples of such ing in the interest of the country." However, the MCCI will have to

The chamber has always encouraged the private sector as the country needs number of unskilled, semi-skilled and skilled manpower.

avoiding any individual gain, Chowdhury said. "We have been work-

On the future of trade and investment, he said Bangladesh is a land of opportunities. "We have lots of space to grow. People here are confident and we need to nurture them properly." The second generation has already degrees, he said. They have the orienta tion needed to run their family business, he added. Industry owners should improve relations with their employees to efficiently run the units. "The MCCI needs to make investment to develop entrepreneurship as Many multinational companies are also MCCI members. The chamber can use these connections and train people to develop new entrepreneurs in the "I want to see the trade bodies and chambers as neutral and independent.

fully," Chowdhury said. "Sometimes, we may not have a consensus with other chambers and trade bodies on different issues. But it does not mean that we do not like them; we have always assisted them with honesty. The MCCI has a strong research cell and is able to think in advance to make predictions on the economy. The chamber always helps the government in formulating the national budget by putting forward recommendations and portraying the real picture of the economy, he said. "For research activities, the MCCI

"We must have big dreams. The denounces vandalism, hartals and violence in its strongest words as they economy in general The MCCI has enjoyed a high degree of acceptance and reliability from all governments, which further validates neutral stance in the political arena ship with successive governments and always provides inputs in formulating business and trade-related policies such the government the chamber has never been self-centred and always takes the socially responsible businesses and said the members of the MCCI have historically been conscious about their role in the society in which they operate. "Business leaders and industrialists have always kept in mind that they are not excluded from the community. It is true that we can't solve all the problems, but we will have to do something for the society within our limited Rahman credited the chamber's competent and professional secretariat for the consistency in its practices and values in spite of leadership change-

The regular staff conducts day-to-day affairs, leaving the president and other board members to be more involved in

The leading entrepreneur particularly highlighted the contributions of CK Hyder, a former secretary general of the chamber who helped in bringing the chamber from Narayanganj to the injunctions due to disagreement among bers of the chamber for maintaining the strong system and tradition, which helps peers respect each other. I hope this will continue into the future," said Rahman, who first got involved with the MCCI as a young entrepreneur in Every leader has his or her own leadership style, ideas and approach, but when they are elected as office bearers at the MCCI they are moulded into the strong value system of the

During his tenure as the MCCI president, his leadership style, he said, was "Obviously, they will grow their businesses and expand them. At the workers and employees. It can only come if the entrepreneurs treat them fairly. Otherwise, they will not be able to build an enterprise."

It enriches society. They need to do what is socially responsible. This is what the MCCI has been doing for

Symbol of unity in decision-making he year 1979 was a challenging gious trade body, Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce and Industry (MCCI), as it had to right the Dhaka Chamber of Commerce and Industry > had shifted from Narayanganj to Dhaka, while DCCI had take each other's members and both will exist in Dhaka. MCCI carved out a coveted Dowla, chairman of the ACI, one of the country's fastest growing consumer brands, said it is the MCCI that supported the VAT (value added tax) law intro duced in 1991. He was the president of the chamber for of the chamber, Dowla said no other chambers supported the VAT law as many thought it will affect their businesses. "But we supported it as we thought it was modern. It was business community, but in the long run, it was the mod-

MCCI is the symbol of unity as a trade body. "We supported government policies on the basis of merit, irrespective of governments," he said. Dowla described the chamber's journey through the decades. Established in 1904, his or her own business, Dowla said. "At the MCCI, we form subcommittees to incorporate knowledgeable businessmen, it witnessed the British regime, outside the executive commit-nobody goes for unhealthy competition to become the MCCI president. He spends a lot of time to run the trade body, but without hampering

MCCI carved out a coveted position in the business community thanks to its unity in decision making and representation of all people involved

Pakistan and now Bangladesh. Coming a long way, the trade body did not witness a clash among the members due to its ability to reach a consensus on

"We never campaign to elect trade bodies do. We always followed one principle, that is, no canvassing for the post of Rather, once the executive selected, the members then try the president, which the other to develop a consensus to elect a president. "This tradition is something we have valued for "We allow the chamber secretary general to be strong and independent. Even the

"We do not recommend anything that is beneficial to any individual president or any particular member.

made based on the merit of MCCI's contribution to The chamber always tried to serve the nation, not for any personal gain. It started the environmental awards for the best practices in business pro-government for enforcing any law. We are totally out of polimatter which regime is in power, we maintained a very professional relationship with the governments." A successful business entre-country. He is hopeful of politicians should give the nomic development of the nomic development of the

"We have demographic dividend of youth, who are available for jobs. This is a tremendous strength, although they are not always skilled. But we will need to train them." Many countries do not have this demographic dividend; impossible, provided we judicious ways and control Dowla said the MCCI has continuously been > labour and industrial poli-The Employers' Federation puts forward suggestions to the government for resolving any crisis in the industrial sec-supporting the government and Bangladesh Employers'

1111

Federation in formulating

"We want to take support from our members so that they also become compliant with the decisions taken by the MCCI,' Dowla said

"In the decision-making process, we are not influenced by outsiders." The MCCI has a tradition of inviting the country's finance minister to its annual general meeting. "The MCCI invites the finance minister mainly to inform him of the activities of the chamber," he said. "I hope the tradition will Dowla pursued a long career. After the completion of his post-graduation in public administration from Karachi University in 1959, Dowla joined Pakistan Oxygen the following year.

tor of Bangladesh Oxygen. Dowla served British Pakistan, Bangladesh and formed ACI Ltd with 300 employees of divested ICI.

their money, he said.

Chowdhury said in an interview with contributions to policy formulation

The chamber has several success stories to share in to step forward with investment to create job opportunities, he added. infrastructure, like railways and bridges, under public-private partner-> come down, he said. work harder to set widely-accepted "Of course, more private sector business standards in the country, he involvement is needed to ensure better said. "We still have a long way to go to services for the masses and the MCCI set up proper business standards and can play a vital role here," the former we are working on it." MCCI chief said.

But the government alone cannot entered business; they are good, smart accomplish it; the private sector needs and a majority of them have foreign The government should welcome private sector entrepreneurs to develop

As an example, if railway services are significantly improved, pressure on the roads and highways and traffic jam will the country has a lot of potential,"

I think the MCCI has proved it success- MCCI is a big family and we have sometimes takes help from experts outside the trade body," he said. "The MCCI needs to do a lot of work for setting business standards in the coun-inherent strength. I hope the chamber will continue its efforts to grow further," Chowdhury said.

(DCCI) for its existence.

been functioning in Dhaka from the beginning. So, there was a clash between the two trade bodies, as they were doing the same jobs. At last, leaders of both MCCI and DCCI reached a consensus that they will not

The tiff was because MCCI position in the business community thanks to its unity in decision-making and representation of all people involved, Anis Ud Dowla, a former president of MCCI, said in an interview with The Daily Star at his office at Tejgaon in Dhaka.

Recalling the glorious past president does not have any about tax that would affect the separate room to sit in. The MCCI president sits with the secretary general and works." "The MCCI president is the ern way. We tried to see beyond the obvious. It is a first among equals, so that tee, so that we can take correct decisions, not influenced by any personal interests."

the issues," he said. policy formulation is immense as it sets standards in business and trade, he said, mentioning the outstanding performance of the trade body's research cell as it assists in decision-tics. This is one of the strengths we have achieved. No country," he said. preneur in the country, Dowla also stated his visions on eco-

Anis Ud Dowla

Bangladesh becoming a midpolitical stability is in place. of this advantage, he added. "If politics is for people, the "So our political vision of becoming a middle-income

After the independence of the country in 1971, he was appointed the managing direc-Oxygen Group of the UK in Kenya for 27 years. In 1992, he