

Michael C. Hall Explains 'Dexter' Ending

There are few shows that suffer from as much controversy as Showtime's Dexter when it comes to the series finale.

However, Michael C. Hall is hoping to clarify a few things. During a Reddit AMA, the actor took a moment to address why the creative decision was made to keep the famed serial killer alive at the end of the drama. He said, "Given what he'd been through, and his attempts to have his cake and eat it too in regards to indulging his compassion to kill AND have a more authentic life, his self-imposed exile did resonate. I think Dexter came to believe that... anything he touched would eventually be destroyed and so he felt he needed to let it all go. Of course, Dexter is also a pragmatist and a self-preservationist so he didn't do himself in. But rather put himself on hold."
