Even before announcing the verdict on Tuesday, the tribunal suggested following legal procedures instead of engaging in violence if the verdict went against anyone.

But Jamaat called hartals after every verdict in the war crimes cases against their leaders and on many occasions Jamaat and Shibir men resorted to violence.

So far, eight top Jamaat leaders have been convicted of war crimes and Jamaat enforced 30 days of shutdowns in the last two years protesting the verdicts by the two special tribunals and Supreme Court on war crimes cases.

However, the prosecution, for the first time yesterday sought action against Jamaat over the issue.

On behalf of the International Crimes Tribunals chief prosecutor, a six-member prosecution team submitted the petition at the tribunal's registrar office around 3:30pm.

Deputy Registrar of the tribunal Arunav Chakravarty said they have received the petition and it would be placed before the tribunal on Monday.

Tajul faced contempt proceedings several times and each time the tribunals cautioned and pardoned him.

any person eligible to vote can register by the date.

Applications have to be submitted to the regional election officer or additional deputy commissioner (ADC), and cantonment executive officer in city corporation and cantonment areas and to the district or upazila election officer and upazila nirbahi officer (UNO) in other areas.

The final voter list will be published on January 31, said the secretary.

He urged all to file complaints if any foreign national or Rohingya was registered as voter.

According to an intelligence report, an unspecified number of Rohingyas was included in the new list, with the help of 46 public representatives including Cox's Bazar-4 lawmaker Abdur Rahman Bodi.

The EC is investigating the issue now, said the secretary.

The voter list was updated between May 15 and November 15.

EC 'SUCCESSFUL'

EC Secretary Sirazul Islam yesterday said 2014 was a year of many challenges because of the national and upazila elections, but the commission successfully overcame those.

The one-sided parliamentary vote was held on January 5 and upazila polls between February and May in phases last year.

The parliamentary body urged a three-member subcommittee comprising members of the committee to submit their investigation report on the missing fertiliser, according to a Jatiya Sangsad secretariat statement.

The missing fertiliser was kept at a warehouse of the state-run BADC at Bhairab in Kishoreganj.

government to formulate some new laws and amend several existing ones.

But not a single recommendation was implemented, he said.

Khairul, a former chief justice, said this was an opinion of Prof Shah Alam and he does not agree with it.

He also asked Justice ATM Fazle Kabir whether he agrees with Shah Alam's opinion. Fazle Kabir remained silent but shook his head in a gesture apparently supporting Khairul.

Shah Alam said this was not his opinion but a matter of fact that the government has not implemented any of the 39 recommendations of the Law Commission.

He said the government was legally bound to inform the parliament about its steps to implement the Law Commission's recommendations.

The journalists can ask the government whether it has implemented any recommendation made by the Law Commission in the last 18 years after its formation, he said.

Justice Khairul said Prof Shah Alam has been serving in the Law Commission a bit longer than him and he knows more about the commission.

"I have learnt that the law secretary has informed the parliamentary standing committee on the law, justice and parliamentary affairs that 14 laws have been acted upon but I could not check this information," he said.

He, however, did not clarify whether the commission had recommended formulation of the 14 laws or changes in them.

At this stage Shah Alam wanted to say something but Justice Khairul became angry. "You continue. I will leave," he said before leaving.

Earlier, Justice Khairul told the media that the commission sent nine recommendations to the government last year, including that of formulating an anti-discrimination law and amendment of the Special Powers Act, 1974.

The commission plans to recommend formulating some fresh laws this year including that for "medical negligence" and "right to food", he added.
