

SPECIAL FEATURE*SHOWSTOPPER
blouses

The concept of a "blouse piece" seems old news these days. Even a year ago, a huge factor in the purchase of a sari was whether it came with a blouse piece that matched it exactly. In case the sari came without, women had a few default blouses in stock which they would use, such as one black, one white, and one red blouse. Necklines were round and sleeves spanned from three to four inches in length.