

Chris Brown's probation revoked in Rihanna assault case

A judge has revoked Chris Brown's probation for his 2009 attack on then girlfriend Rihanna, after the rapper travelled to a concert without permission and failed to complete his community service on time. Los Angeles Superior Court judge James Brandlin allowed Brown to remain free until a March 20 hearing, when the judge will receive an update from probation officials, reported TMZ online. The 25-year-old singer had been ordered not to leave Los Angeles County without permission back in December, but his recent trip to perform in San Jose was not approved. Brown's lawyer Mark Geragos told Judge Brandlin that his office incorrectly advised the R&B star that he did not need permission to travel. He still has around 200 hours of community service to complete before the end of January 2015, after being requested to serve a total of 1,000 hours.

AGE OF ULTRON WILL USE A TRANSPARENT NEW PHONE - THAT REALLY WORKS!

Tony Stark has access to some of the best technology known to man. He's a brilliant man with a lot of money and he always equips himself with the best gadgets on the market. But even he's leveling up with the Avengers sequel. In The Avengers: Age Of Ultron, some brand-new tech that Samsung made specifically for the film will be showcased. This includes a REAL, fully functioning, see-through phone, among other items. What better place to showcase your real life new exciting gadgets than in the most exciting movie event of the year? There will be plenty of people watching, and if they see how awesome this thing is, sales are destined to go up. The film will also feature Smartwatches and Bluetooth devices that will eventually make their way to the market. The transparent phone, itself, isn't going to be available for a while either. So, while the movie comes out May 1, don't expect to be able to buy this stuff right away.

My daughters won't be actresses:

NICOLE KIDMAN

Nicole Kidman says she doesn't see her daughters becoming actresses. The Australian star, who won the Best Actress Oscar in 2002 for her role in 'The Hours', said whilst acting is her passion, she doesn't think her daughters Sunday Rose, 6, and Faith Margaret, 4, will follow in her footsteps, reported Hello! magazine. "I think they would actually run the other way!" said Kidman when quizzed on whether her youngsters would be interested in acting. "(Acting) was just my desire and my motivation, and I don't see that in Sunday or Faith. They're like, 'Nope, we're not interested'," she said. Kidman, 47, who also has two adopted children called Conor and Isabella from her 11-year marriage to Tom Cruise, said she has already heard Rose voice her desire for a multitude of other careers. "Sunday wants to be a vet right now and a party planner. Then she says she wants to be a stay-at-home mom and have eight children. I think that's her way of saying to me, 'Stay at home!'," she added.
