Violence has to stop right away

Urges 'concerned citizen' group to pave the way for talks; 13 members to push the initiative forward

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A group of eminent citizens yesterday called for an immediate end to the continuing acts of terror to pave the way for dialogue between the two major political parties.

"The atmosphere for dialogue will not be created unless violence is stopped. Besides, it's an international practice that violence should be ceased before any such initiative gets underway," former chief election commissioner ATM Shamsul Huda said on behalf of "concerned citizens".

"Peace has to be restored first. To do so, petrol bomb attacks, violence on the streets and indiscriminate killing of common people will have to be stopped," he said during a press conference at Jatiya Press Club.

In the midst of death and despair brought on by political instability, spring has finally arrived in Dhaka, bringing with it new leaves, vibrant blossoms and the hope of a better tomorrow. Unwilling to remain confined in their homes any longer, people of all ages stepped out on the city streets to celebrate the rejuvenating energy of this season yesterday.

For the first time in almost a quarter of a century, the cricket World Cup is back Down Under. For the traditionalists and newcomers alike, it is a long overdue return to one of the sport's spiritual homes.

The long wait for cricket's showpiece event in New Zealand and Australia is over and the mood is infectious with millions of cricket fans around the world for Saturday's opening matches.

The first weekend has all the makings for a blockbuster. On Saturday, New Zealand host Sri Lanka in Christchurch and only a few hours later, across the Tasman Sea, Australia face England at the Melbourne Cricket Ground, the same sprawling venue where the two great rivals staged the first ever One-Day International, in 1971.
