

Reese Witherspoon And Sofia Vergara Are Hilarious In Hot Pursuit Trailer!

Reese Witherspoon and Sofia Vergara wouldn't have been our first idea for a hilarious comedy duo... But they totally are and we absolutely love it!! The famous ladies are teaming up to bring the laughs in their new comedy film Hot Pursuit. The film is about Reese play-cop who has to protect Sofia, the wife of a cartel boss. They each play their role perfectly in the trailer, Reese's doofy cop balanced by Sofia's fiery latina. There just might be some real comedic chemistry there. The movie comes out in theaters on May 8th, so until then just watch the trailer on loop and get all hot and bothered!

SPIDER-MAN To Join 'Avengers': Is Andrew Garfield Out?

After years of exclusion, Spider-Man might finally be joining the Marvel universe! But will Spidey star Andrew Garfield reprise his role? It's just been announced that Sony Studios, who's been responsible for all of the Spider-Man movies so far, has teamed with Marvel in producing future films. So, what does this mean for Spidey in the Marvel franchise and does that mean Andrew Garfield is exiting the films for good? This is groundbreaking because, as fans of the franchise know, Peter Parker (Spidey's real life identity) largely contributes to the Avengers alliance in many of the Marvel comics. Of course, with good news often comes some bad. Along with announcement of the new addition to the Marvel universe, it was also confirmed that Andrew, who had played Spider-Man in The Amazing Spider-Man and The Amazing Spider-Man 2, will not return to the franchise for future films. A new Spider-Man film is currently slated to open on July 28, 2017, however, because of the new partnership, fans may likely see Spidey on the silver screen before that date. While there is no official word yet as to which film we'll next see Spider-Man in, fans have been wildly speculating (perhaps accurately) that he will show up in Captain America: Civil War, heading to the big screen on May 6, 2016.
