It is not anything new. It has been a long time. Here is an extract from a 2005 report on the emirate's private sector, is the regular protests by disgruntled workers over the maltreatment or poor working conditions of unpaid wages at their embassy on cleaning company took out their anger causing extensive damage and slightly injured people. Coupled with their refusal to national Migrant Workers Convention, accused by Human Rights Watch in a report on "forced labour".

Not all who have been deported to Dhaka were involved in their demand for wages. Even deportees to
