No more cliché roles

Farah Ruma is a very popular face in television, despite not being part of too many productions. One of the many reasons why she doesn't participate in too many productions is because she has become very selective in her roles. When asked about her recent project "Chiro Boshonto" she said, "I like choosing my productions based on what roles I will play. That's why I am not part of too many productions. I like being part of work that makes me and my audiences happy".

CHADNI RETURNS

Chadni was one of the many popular actresses a while back. Now though, she concentrates more on dancing and has taken a couple of steps back from the world of media. However, she will be returning soon, to the joy of her fans, in a new TV Drama made exclusively to celebrate Mother's Day called "Bala". Acting alongside her will be Shojol and the drama is directed by Nuzhat Alvi Ahmed.

EMON COMES CLEAN

Emon is a pretty well established actor in the industry, but he was also subject to a lot of controversy, mostly surrounding his marital status. He claimed he was single, despite the presence of photographs of his marriage in the media. Well, the controversy ends today as he has finally come clean: he is indeed married, and is also the father of two children! The reason for this cover up is still unclear although many speculate this was done for his career.
