

Flights of fancy

Spring is rolling by, and the scorching summer heat is upon us. So is Pohela Boishakh, the month of nor'westers when the heat of summer is washed away with a gust of cool wind and pouring rains. Bengal is to be cleansed of dirt and grime with the coming of the new year, as shopkeepers will open their "haal khata", girls will be dressed in white and red, boys will don their new panjabis, raw mango "bhortas" will start to appear on street sides and the masses will welcome yet another year to their lives.
